English Intelligence Tired Back to Canada
Nonsense About Princes
Death as a Balance
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

Lloyd George announces that Dublin and the South of Ireland will be taxed to repay the ten million dollars destroyed in the Dublin custom house. This will make English taxpayers feel better, but will not do much to settle the Irish problem.

The mishandling of the Irish revolution and of the great coal strike indicates that the management of Great Britain tired itself out in the war. England's existence depends upon manufactures and exports. The English could no more live on their land than the inhabitants of a city tenement could live on the back yard. To allow a coal strike to shut down industry throughout the nation, in order to oblige mine owners that produce nothing, was not brilliant.

On Saturday several carloads of livestock were shipped from the Buffalo stockyards to Canada, whence they had come. They arrived too late to escape the emergency tariff of 30 per cent. and were returned to the Toronto market.

This tariff means that American farmers will have 30 per cent. the best of it in selling all meat—except pork—to American consumers. It does not necessarily mean a 30 per cent. decrease to aid in destroying American farms by limited competition.

Hitherto the Canadian farmers had the best of it by eleven per cent., because of the difference in exchange, the American dollar being worth $1.11 in Canadian money.

The emergency tariff may not be perfect. The permanent tariff to follow will be full of favoritism and mistakes. But an imperfect high tariff is better than many miles of the bread line, and that is the choice.

Prince Hirohito, son of the Mikado, has reached France in his glorious trip aboard the Japanese battleship Katori. Ambassadors and high dignitaries meet him and bow low. The young man may end by saying to himself, "I believe my father is really related to the sun and moon." He may even decide foolishly that the son of heaven ought to rule on both sides of the Pacific.

That would be a disaster for him, and very annoying for us. Republics that make a great fuss about princes that have never done anything except to be born in a palace make a great mistake perpetuating a false idea inimical to republics.

This country made a fool of itself about the Prince of Wales, now France does the same about the Prince of Japan. It's folly. For all those princes and their payroll must be abolished before men really begin to rule themselves. The world is rid of the Romanoffs, Hohenzollerns, Hapsburgs and some others. All the divine right breed must go eventually, even though their going will wound the hearts of snobs.

Among animals, murder and the weather keep the balance. Late Spring killed caterpillar eggs, hung in white nests in the wild cherry. Birds later will miss those caterpillars.

Sunshine Valley, W. Va., is heaving for cats in a hurry. Cats and many kittens seemed a nuisance and were killed off. Now mice and rats destroy crops. Cats are bought, borrowed AND their kittens will not be drowned until the balance goes the other way.

So it was in the West. Coyotes ate a few young lambs and a big bounty killed off the coyotes. Then field mice destroyed alfalfa and there was nothing for lambs to eat. Farmers forgot that the coyotes eat field mice more often than young lambs.

As with animals, so it has been with men. Stronger races killed off the inferior or kept them down. Too great fertility, outstripping food production, invention and machinery, has been held in check by war, famine and plague. Presently, when all animals have disappeared, and proteid tablets take the place of beefsteak, population will be held in check, not by murder, but by limited families. Two children for each man and woman, with an occasional extra allowance for women of unusual genius.

To return to cats. When will human intelligence find a way to end rats and mice permanently? Their disappearance might be followed by frightful increase in insect vermin now destroyed by them, but the world would risk that.

Strange that with us today, as it was in ancient Egypt, where the cat was worshipped, there is no cat substitute in rat and mice killing.

A headline says: "The whole Navajo tribe in danger of typhus." Typhus, a dreadful disease, is carried from one body to another by vermin and is therefore of filth. It threatens to kill off the remaining Navajos, numbering twenty thousand. Many have died and been secretly buried, "to prevent interference by the whites." Human beings in the savage state always hate interference with the physical vermin of the body, or the mental vermin, the superstition of the mind. Sunlight and soap would save the Navajos, as education will eventually save white barbarians.

Eye-Witness Reveals Escapades at $100,000 Party in Spite of Warning

Details of the Mishawum Manor "chicken and champagne dinner" which figures in the Allen-Tufts controversy and the silk pajama and "Garden of Eden" parties which preceded it have been told for the first time by one who was there.

The celebrated party was given by Mrs. Lillian Kingston to motion picture magnates in March, 1917, and the one who tells the tale, Teresa McDonald, was one of the entertainers.

She is now married, a respected resident of South Boston, and her life story is suspected by few of her neighbors.

Miss McDonald tells of young girls corrupted by "Lil" Kingston for the entertainment of her male patrons, of flashlight pictures of disreputable parties, later used, presumably, to blackmail "tired business men," or men of wealth and standing placed in the power of the operator of Mishawum Manor by their indiscretions.

MOST OF THEM YOUNG.

"Lil" Kingston seldom bothered with girls more than 14 or 16 years old, according to the eye-witness. She realized the preference of blase and sophisticated business men for innocence and youth, and made her living by playing on their weakness.

"Miss McDonald," as she will be

PEGGY GRACE CASE IS AGAIN PUT OFF

There was another postponement today of the hearings which have been proceeding in Brookline District Court in connection with the charges of "Peggy" Grace, film star, against Robert M. Dobbins, wealthy Brookline real estate operator. The case was to come up on a continuances. It was put over to June 8. None of the parties was in court. The exact nature of the hearings has not been indicated. Miss Grace is suing Dobbins in the civil courts for $100,000, charging breach of promise. Her father, Pierce Grace, is suing him for $50,000, alleging seduction.

165 TALESMEN IN SACCO TRIAL

Judge Thayer Addresses Veniremen—Three Jurors Selected So Far

A new panel of 165 veniremen was on hand today when the trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti for the murder of a South Braintree paymaster and guard was resumed in the Dedham Criminal Court before Judge Thayer.

The new panel was address for more than three-quarters of an hour by Judge Thayer, who outlined the duty of the juror and the need for strict attention to duty.

There are now three jurors in the box, and when the judge finished his address the work of selecting the remaining nine started at once.

One reason for the slowness with which the jury is being gathered is that both sides are making free use of their preemptory challenges.

MAY HOLD NIGHT SESSION.

It is expected that Judge Thayer will hold a night session this evening should it prove necessary to expedite the selection of the jury.

The public was again excluded from the trial today and Sheriff Capen redoubled his precautions against possible trouble. Three guards were stationed at each door, fifteen others were scattered about the room and four specially picked men were guarding the two prisoners.

Friends of District Attorney F. G. Katzmann declared that he has received a number of threatening letters. Katzmann refused to affirm or deny this report.

TOOK $200 'TO BEAT UP' NOTT

"Bo" Rooney Testifies to Waiting for Victim With Wife and Elwood Wade

Bridgeport, Ct., June 1. — William "Bo" Rooney under the questioning of State's Attorney Homer S. Cummings, prosecuting Mrs. Ethel Hutchins Nott here for the murder of her husband, told of accepting an offer of $200 from Elwood H. Wade, who was hanged last week for the murder, to "help him beat up a feller."

Rooney told of being presented to Mrs. Nott by Wade with the introduction that her husband was the man to get the beating. Wade had shown him a gun on this occasion, he testified.

He told of going to the Nott house on a Saturday night and waiting on the stairs to beat up Nott. At 12 o'clock, he continued, Mrs. Nott came and woke him up, telling him that she did not think her husband would be home that night.

He went back the following night, he said, accompanied by Wade. After a talk with Wade on that occasion he left the house.

State's Attorney Cummings, when Rooney told of accepting the $200 offer to "beat up" Nott, asked:

"Would beat up any man for $200 whether you knew him or not?"

"Yes, sir," said Rooney, and a repetition of the question brought the same answer.

Mrs. Elbert Wade, mother of Elwood B. Wade, identified letters written to her son by Mrs. Nott while he was in prison. She was on the witness stand when the day's adjournment came.

The Prudential Trust Company will be the first of the banks closed follo-

COOK HONORED BY SCHWAB BELIEVES IN SQUARE MEAL

By HAZEL CANNING.

She cooked the luncheon, and he ate it.
Then he told her she was a great cook,
And she told him he was a fine man.

Compliments were even; admiration was reciprocal. They met on common ground: on kitchen, culinary, nutritive territory, where each, she in her cooking line, he in his eating line, were connoisseurs supreme.

For he was "Charlie" Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Works.

And she was Mrs. Margaret MacDonald, high grand cook, and last word said, in the kitchen of the same corporation, down at Fore River, Quincy.

The interview, and the mutual admiration party, and the compliments, all took place a little while ago, when "Charlie" Schwab and about nineteen other Bethlehem Steel officials came to Quincy to inspect the plant. It was then they tarried, at noon, over the delicious, home made luncheon of Mrs. MacDonald.

JUST ORDINARY MEAL.

But as to that Schwab luncheon, Mrs. MacDonald disclaims all praise. "Just an ordinary luncheon," she says, smiling. "Just ordinary, like we have every day; cooked my best, as I try always to cook." Here's the menu:

Clam Chowder
Broiled Live Lobster
French Fried Potatoes
Olives—Celery
Pie, apple and Squash
Coffee

"Just an ordinary luncheon—not at all!" said Charlie Schwab, president. He said more; in fact he wrote more, in a letter which Mrs. MacDonald received the day after the luncheon, from Mr. Schwab's New York office. Here's the letter:

My Dear Mrs. MacDonald:

I never ate such a good luncheon as the one at the Fore River Plant yesterday. Not only did I enjoy the luncheon, but I enjoyed meeting you.

As a slight reminder of our delightful visit, I send you an autographed photograph, with my very best compliments and good wishes. With kind regards, I am, sincerely yours,

CHARLES M. SCHWAB.

MODEST OVER TRIUMPH.

So did the presiding goddess at Fore River restaurant triumph. But is she puffed up by her triumph? And is she stuffy about her cooking, now the great man has passed judgment?

She is not! Her daughter, Mrs. Walter Curry, will explain all about that. "Ma," says Mrs. Curry, "just hates to have anyone compliment her on her sponge cake, or her squash pie, or her doughnuts.

In fact, there's just one secret Mrs. MacDonald lets out about her cooking. It's that she prefers to cook for men.

"For they like to sit down to a regular square meal," she explains, "and that's the kind of meal I prefer to cook."

Which is the reason why all the "boys" at Fore River will tell you that Mrs. MacDonald's good food appealed to "Charlie" Schwab.

STILL REVEALED IN CAMP FIRE

Haverhill, June 1. — The police are looking for the owner of a big still that was discovered by the fire department during a fire that wrecked a camp owned by Samuel Woodson, Scotland Hill. The fire started from the still that became overheated. After extinguishing the fire, District Chief George H. Whiting made an investigation, John Reardon, who occupies a camp near the one damaged, tried to put out the blaze before the department arrived. He is in Gale Hospital with a dislocated ankle and shoulder and other injuries.

CALL LAWRENCE HOME FIRETRAP

Lawrence, June 1.—That the Lawrence City Home is a fire trap chiefly because the wretched street and road conditions which exist in its immediate approaches render the passage of fire apparatus difficult, is the declaration of Alderman Edward C. Callahan who publicly declared against the condition before a council meeting. H. A. S. Read declared that the Plymouth mills had spent about $400,000 in new buildings but that further plans of development will be suspended until Lawrence gives better streets.

MOBS BEAT TWO POLICEMEN

Sergeant Studley Injured, Is Rushed to Hospital After Attack

Two Boston policemen were severely beaten by hostile mobs in different sections of the city today.

They were Sergeant Winfield A. Studley of the Back Bay station and Patrolman Davis McCarthy of the East Dedham street station.

DAVIS M'CARTHY

Patrolman McCarthy was set upon while trying to disperse a crowd at Columbus avenue and Greenwich park.

Reserves were sent from the station house. Four negroes were arrested and are being held as suspicious persons.

Sergeant Studley was beaten and severely injured while attempting to capture five men who had been creating a disturbance at No. 311 Huntington avenue.

Patrolman Herbert H. Haskins, who accompanied the sergeant, pursued the men and arrested George E. Loanes, twenty-nine years old, of No. 73 Howard avenue, Roxbury. The others escaped.

Studley was taken to the City Hospital, where he was found to have sustained a fractured left big and pelvis, and his condition was said to be serious.

According to the police the two men had been sent to investigate a complaint from Huntington avenue. They heard a noise at No. 311 and Haskins entered the building, proceeding to the third floor. At the landing on that floor five men rushed at him and after a rough and tumble fight brushed the policeman aside and fled down stairs. They were met on the first floor by Studley, who ordered them to halt.

Instead of complying the five leaped at the sergeant, knocked him down, beat him and then rolled him down the front steps to the sidewalk.

Commissioner Allen said the fact that he had been able to raise only 33 1-2 per cent. of the deposits indicated the condition the bank had been in.

He added that this did not mean that 33 1-3 per cent. was all depositors would get. Further payments will be made as fast as assets can be converted into cash.

Asked what the depositors in the commercial department of the Prudential would get, he answered, "nobody knows."

The courts have yet to decide what part of the assets in the commercial department must be transferred to the savings accounts.

Concerning the Hanover Trust Company, Mr. Allen said a decision would be reached within a week as to whether it would be taken over by the Boston National Bank. Charles Ponzi was a big figure in the Hanover about $1,000,000 of his profits are on deposit there.

MAKES PLEA FOR MENTAL CASES

Nervous Patients Rarely Get Square Deal, Says Medico-Psychology Head

Declaring that the mental patients upon whom the State of Massachusetts expends more than one-eighth of its annual budget rarely got a "square deal," Dr. Owen Copp, president of the American Medico-Psychological Association, addressing the annual convention of the body at the Hotel Somerset, urged its members to greater efforts in "arousing public consciousness to this woeful state of affairs."

"Our government, State and national, is confronted with no greater issue, nor with any issue greater in potentiality for good or ill to their people, than is involved in the development of a wise and adequate policy in the matter of mental diseases," Dr. Copp declared.

RARELY GETS "SQUARE DEAL."

"Public and professional consciousness must be roused to sense the woeful state of affairs existing at present. The mental patient rarely gets a 'square deal' and rarely has an even chance with other sufferers.

"Insufficiency of living space is almost universal in public institutions. Clinical and research laboratories, which are indispensable in diagnosis, treatment and betterment of methods are deficient usually or absent altogether.

"If by our efforts we can obtain adequate treatment for mental cases we will restore to health at least one-fourth of the mental patients and probably more."

REVIEWS PROGRESS.

Dr. Copp, who is physician-in-chief and administrator in the Department for Mental and Nervous Diseases in the Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, reviewed the progress made in the seventy-seven years of the association.

Others who read papers before the convention were Dr. H. W. Mitchell of Warren, Pennsylvania, and Dr. Charles G. Wagner of Binghamton, N. Y.

The annual address "Medicine and Psychology" was given by Professor William McDougall of the psychology department of Harvard.

alled, told her story despite threats o put her out of the way if she revealed," she says. She told it to ave other young girls from the fate hich came to those who listened to he blandishments of Lilian King-ton, alias Stella Kennedy, alias Brownie Kennedy, alias Helen A-lorse, alias Lillian Dale.

Incidentally, she does not believe illian Kingston is in Cuba, but that e is in hiding in Greater Boston.

There were seventeen young girls nd eighteen men at the party in Ashawum Manor March 6, 1917, ac-ording to Teresa McDonald.

Among the men were motion pic-ure magnates, managers of local ictures theatres and others.

It is the blackmail aftermath that gures in the charges made by At-orney-General Allen against District ttorney Tuttle of Middlesex County.

'HREATENED BY LAWYER.

"I played the piano for the dancers nd singers the night of the famous ine party," said Miss McDonald.

"Mr. (naming a prominent Boston lawyer) threatened to have me put ut of the way if I ever dared to tell he real story of the wine party.

Miss McDonald's mother corrobo-rated the story of the threats.

"I know the lawyer has all sorts f power and that he is protecting Brownie Kennedy. He may be able o frame me up and send me to prison, ut Stella Kennedy took me when I as only a child of thirteen years nd wrecked my life.

IANY GIRLS RUINED.

"She has also wrecked dozens of ther young girls. If anything I an tell the public will keep other oung girls out of the clutches of uch shrewish. I don't care how they rame me up. I'll take my medicine nd be satisfied.

"My partner and I," continued Miss cDonald, "were hired by Brownie ennedy to play the piano and dance. rownie told us she would have a ull party of millionaire moving pic-ure men there. She wanted a lot of ounted young girls with pep and le-ety of them.

S AT DINNER.

"Twenty-one of you girls ran land ob as a moving picture star if you at on the right side of one of them," he told us.

"Seventeen girls and eighteen men ere at the dinner. Among them were moving picture magnates, a congress-an and a high official of the State.

The girls were the youngest Brown-e could obtain. She always tried to mploy girls of 15 and 16, younger if he could get them.

"I had been playing at the road-ouse since I was 13. I went there n innocent young girl. It wasn't ong before my eyes were opened. I ained to realize, but it was too late. hat's when Brownie Kennedy did it. ll teens of other girls, and, like me, hey realized it only when too late."

TELS OF ORGY.

The night of the famous wine arty I was shocked at what seemed o surround me. Men were holding o young girls on their laps and en-ouraging them to drink wine.

The young girls danced and to dance nd sing like they do in the caba-ets. One young girl had on so few lothes I felt ashamed to look at her.

"As she danced by the tables some f the drunken men seized her, forced heir kisses on her and caressed her ruelly. I just hated the little thing—it was awful.

"Another girl with little on except veiling did the shimmy. When the irl tried to sing their songs, the runken men would shout so loud the inger couldn't be heard.

"Then they would seize her and put er into their laps and kiss her in he most shocking manner right be-ore everybody.

"They pulled all the scanty clothing o girl had on right off of her—all o her stockings.

"The men were becoming drunker nd drunker—but all of them—but a ood many. The hostess would invite he guests as they addressed one an-ther were the biggest men in the mo-ion picture world.

"I never thought that they would ee get into the newspapers.

"The movie dinner was—but the ecret by many means that I had wit-essed, but I told Brownie Kennedy he next day I wanted her to let me ave money she owed me, as I was itting through.

"Brownie Kennedy has a young on about seventeen or eighteen, ow. He was about my age four ears ago. He was innocent of what was going on.

Child Is Lashed Often to Prevent "Spoiling"

Is whipping the lazy parent's substitute for real parental care? Do too many modern parents try to shift responsibility for training their offspring by transferring it to teachers and clergymen? The most interesting letter in today's batch on the whipping controversy sets forth this claim.

Other interesting letters appear today. One is from an "Only Child," who rejects the claim that she is necessarily a "spoiled child." Her parents are so fearful she will get too important that they use the strap frequently. Has your opinion appeared yet. Send it in. Write to "Training Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass."

FREQUENTLY WHIPPED.

Training Editor, Boston American:

Being an only child my parents are afraid I will be spoiled. Consequently, I am frequently whipped. Not only my parents but my grandparents, my uncles and my aunts insist that I be "shown my place" with the strap or slipper. D. W.

Boston.

NEVER FEARED PARENTS.

Training Editor, Boston American:

I can well remember when a child that I was always glad to see my father come home from work. I was never afraid of him or of my mother. They started to teach me to be good when I was very young, just old enough to understand. That is the time to start to teach a child. We all know well enough, although we don't all admit it, that fathers and mothers are mostly to blame for their children's wrong-doing. Too many fathers try to transfer all responsibility for their children to the teacher or preacher. Then again, many wives and husbands have little spats before their children. What can they expect from the children? If punishment must be administered let it be in the form of depriving youngsters of some pleasure.

JUST FATHER.

Leominster.

COMPANIONSHIP LACKING.

Training Editor, Boston American:—There can be no definite line set for whipping. It must be applied or withheld according to the nature of the child. But I may say that there is not enough companionship between parents and children. There is no friendship between the young and the old in many families. There is no "chummy feeling." The elders are just father and mother. Too many parents seem to expect child, on reaching years to feel a debt of gratitude for the "blessings" the parents have heaped upon them, not realizing little people reason through their emotions rather than their intellects for the first few years. RAPHAEL MERCARTOR.

LASH INEFFECTIVE.

Training Editor, Boston American:—I think it is very wrong for parents to whip their children. My father whips me for almost anything. I am not the kind of a girl who goes out much or makes trouble. The consequence is that I hate my own dad. If it were not for my dear mother I would not stay home one day. I am able to support myself. Whipping does no good. ONE WHO KNOWS

Brockton.

DIFFERENCE IN CHILDREN.

Training Editor, Boston American:—I am interested in your letters on spanking, particularly in that one from the boy who signed himself "A Geb, U. S. Naval Torpedo Station, Newport, R. I." This boy should forgive his father for the thrashings he administered, if only for the sake of his mother. As to spanking itself, there is a great difference in children. Some you can reason with, some you cannot. A VERMONTER.

PROMPT PONZI HEARING ASKED

Attorney-General Urges Speedy Disposition of Financier's Appeal

Attorney-General Allen today asked the full bench of the Circuit Court of Appeals to take speedy action to settle the status of Charles Ponzi.

He requested that a date be set for speedy trial of the appeal that took when Judge Hale in Federal Court denied Ponzi a writ of habeas corpus and in effect decided he could be tried in Suffolk Superior Court for alleged conspiracy and larceny.

Ponzi's claim has been that as a Federal prisoner serving a five-year term at Plymouth for use of the mails to defraud he is outside the jurisdiction of the State courts.

Besides asking for speedy trial on the appeal, Attorney-General Allen today requested that typewritten briefs and records be used instead of printed, in order to save time. The court took it under advisement.

Judge Hall Overrules Demurrer of Banker Defendants for Dismissal

Judge Walter Hall, in the Norfolk County Superior Court today overruled the demurrer filed by the defendants in the $15,000,000 suit brought by George F. Willett and Edmund H. Sears against Robert F. Herrick, Daniel G. Wing, partners in Kidder, Peabody & Co., and the officials of the Chase National Bank of New York.

Under this ruling the suit will come up for trial in its regular turn on the docket.

Willett and Sears charge in their complaint that the defendants conspired to gain illegal control of the American Felt Company and the Daniel H. Green Felt Company of Worcester, and that they also plotted to prevent the companies from obtaining necessary loans from local banks.

No Longer Just a Luxury

The automobile is no longer a luxury. It is a pleasure—a very great pleasure, but it is also an asset.

Nowadays no man who has a car uses it for pleasure only. He makes use of it in his business, for it is a wonderful time saver and contract nailer. Thousands of men make their motorcars pay for themselves several times over.

Every motorcar used to cost a large sum of money. Nowadays a fine car sometimes requires only a modest sum. There are some dandy used cars going at very low prices in today's

CLEAR WOMAN IN SINGER'S MURDER

Providence, June 1.—That Agostino Dacresoldro, better known as Tony DeRosa, the Boston singer who was murdered and his body found by the roadside near Oakland beach last Wednesday morning, was killed for revenge, is now the theory of Chief of Police Ellis A. Cranston, of Warwick.

The dead man's friends and relatives steadfastly refuse to aid the police in solving the mystery. Chief Cranston says that the woman with whom "Tony" talked at the cyclodrome Tuesday night, when he was seen by friends, had nothing to do with the shooting.

CHELSEA WOMAN IS OUT WITH FACTS

"I Am Simply Overjoyed At What Tanlac Did For Me," Says Mrs. Vogel.

So many people throughout the United States and Canada have testified to having used Tanlac with such splendid results following influenza, grippe, chronic ills, old and long-standing, and other troubles, that result in a trip down could not, that it has become universally recognized as one of the most powerful reconstructive tonics of the present day.

Another very striking statement in connection with this fact was made a few days ago by Mrs. Gertrude L. Vogel, 376 Broadway, Chelsea.

"I must confess it was a big surprise to me the way Tanlac has relieved my troubles and is building me up," said Mrs. Vogel. "At present I find a serious operation all of those then up until I took Tanlac was unable to recover my strength. For months I felt tired and worn out all the time. There was hardly any use for me to go to the table as I had no appetite and when I did venture to eat what I thought I needed I had awful attacks of indigestion.

"My food turned into a lump of lead in the pit of my stomach and caused severe cramps. I was very nervous, restless all day and got very little sleep at nights. I felt especially tired and worn out in the morning after a horrid, wakeful night. I don't know what the end would have been if a relative in Canada had not written me of the wonderful results of what Tanlac was doing up there.

"Soon after I began taking it I noticed a decided improvement in both my appetite and digestion and before long I had a splendid appetite and was eating anything I wanted. I can hardly wait, now, for meal time to come around. I have such a good healthy hunger and my strength is returning fast. I just seem to get new life and energy with every dose. I get a peaceful sleep every night and wake up in the wonderful condition just done for Tanlac has benefited me in every way and my appearance shows it, too, for my friends all comment on how much better I am looking. To say I am delighted is putting the case too lightly. I am simply overjoyed at what this wonderful medicine has done for me."

Tanlac is distributed by International Proprietaries, Inc., and sold in Boston by all Liggett's drug stores.—Advertisement.

INDIA ANXIOUS FOR U. S. TRADE

Market of 315,000,000 People Awaiting Development, Says Dr. Nair

DR. A. L. NAIR

"There is a market of 315,000,000 people awaiting development by the American business man," declared Dr. A. L. Nair, one of the wealthiest business men of Bombay, India, now visiting Boston.

Dr. A. L. Nair is accompanied by his wife and his little daughter, Miss Kushabahi. Dr. Rele and Miss Contractor. They have visited China, Japan and the Western States of this country on their way around the world. He is a manufacturer of surgical instruments and drugs.

WANTS AMERICAN TRADE.

"I am here," he said, largely in the interest of bettering trade relations between this country and my own, India is looking for American goods and wants American trade.

"World War conditions greatly increased the trade between the two nations, but there is vast room for further growth.

"India is passing through a stage of industrial revolution and many factories are being started and American experts are being engaged.

"America has great surplus capital to invest and if the American capitalists invest in joint-stock companies composed of Indians and Americans in India, there is great possibility of closer trade relations and mutual gain. American business men should take special care for establishing American banking institutions for furthering American trade in the Orient."

MAHATMA A PROPHET

Asked if he knew Mahatma Gandhi, the doctor said—

"Mahatma Gandhi is a prophet. He is not a mere saint of India, he is a world-teacher, and working for all humanity. He is carrying on a Non-Co-operation movement against the government, not with a spirit of hatred but because he feels it is his mission to regenerate the Indian people for their spritual, economic and political betterment.

"Mahatma Gandhi disapproves violence in all forms and abhors war and killing. He is living the teachings of Christ and hundreds of millions of Indian people follow him."

Fresh From Paris

PARIS, France.

The cape and the tailleur have come in for a great deal of attention this Summer, but there is also much that is worthy of praise when Paris puts on her coat. At the races recently a long linen coat more than held its own in a group of crepe and satin capes. The straight body and the upper part of the skirt were of mastic linen, while the lower part was of dark blue linen with a trimming of silk stitchery in matching blue. The long, medium full sleeves repeat the combination of mastic and blue and also the design in stitchery. There is a quite general tendency this Summer to eliminate all unnecessary buttons, and, in fact, some that once were thought necessary, and as a result this model fastens with but one button at the throat and one at the waist.

NARROW stripes of rose color and smoke gray applied lengthwise about the bottom of a short coat give distinction to the linen suit at the right, of rose-colored linen, while a similar treatment is accorded the three-quarter sleeves. The coat front is cut away to show a frilly blouse, and the collar, cut in one with the coat, is lined with smoke gray linen. As a contrasting note three gray linen bands travel laterally about the skirt. A fogue, made along becoming lines, is of gray taffeta and has outstanding loops of the taffeta at each side.

LENINE AS SEEN BY HAPGOOD

America and France Declared Losers by Dodging Trade With Soviets

By NORMAN HAPGOOD
Staff Correspondent of Boston Americans.

Washington, June 1.—Raymond Poincaire, looking for trouble to enable him to overthrow the more moderate Briand, charges the British government of requetting with Moscow. Meantime the British, too polite to smile, select an expert commission which will sew up everything in Russia that it seems desirable to sew up.

Norman Hapgood

Poincaire is welcome to the advantage of making a large stage noise. So is our State Department—it is Mr. Hughes' only slip so far. The British do not care who makes the virtuous stage noises. They go ahead with their job.

A woman sends in an interesting letter about Russia. She accepts the diagnosis of Russia that I have been putting out for three years—that Bolshevism is a symptom, and that the Franco-American policy is based on hope and not facts—but she wants me to state more exactly what will happen in Russia if the policy I have been backing is carried out.

The highest court in England has decided that the Soviet government is recognized. Therefore the concessions are good.

Lenine's opponents do not try to prevent his triumphs at congresses and elections. They only put obstacles in the way of carrying out his policies.

These policies are four. First, big concessions must be granted to foreign capital, while Russia is protected by having the leases limited in certain ways, notably as to time.

2. The farmer must be allowed to run his own business, and ordinary small business must also be free.

3. The trades-unions must be free and saddled with much responsibility as go-between between the government and the people. This will interest William Johnstone, head of the American machinists, now on his way to Russia.

4. Oppression of the co-operatives must cease. The mistaken policy pursued toward the co-operative associations was always against Lenin's judgment.

WHITE MAY QUIT HIS IRATE "GARDEN"

By Universal Service.

Marlboro, N. Y., June 1.—Bouck White, "tarred and feathered and carried in a rail" by irate citizens of Ulster County last Monday, may leave his little farm down in Snake Valley.

"If this feeling of hostility persists I will leave this wonderful garden spot," he said today. White's alleged cruelty toward his wife brought on the outbreak of "community spirit" against him.

CONSTIPATED FROM CHILDHOOD

PERMANENTLY RELIEVED BY A BREAKFAST FOOD

Here is a quite remarkable letter from Mr. H. W. B. of Providence, R. I.:

"Dear Sirs:

This is a long postponed letter regarding Cereal Meal and the benefit Mrs. B. has experienced from its use.

From childhood she had been a sufferer from extreme Constipation. At periods Laxatives, Cathartics and Purgatives had not to mention benefit.

When we first heard of your Cereal Meal Mrs. B.'s health was in a very serious condition due (as I believe) wholly to this trouble.

Now we find the most extraordinary results. Her health is better than it has been in twenty years. She has a normal, healthy movement of the bowels every day and sometimes twice a day, whereas previously it was not unusual for her to wait five and ten days for relief, which, when it came, did not deserve the name of relief.

The action of the Cereal Meal appears to be entirely natural as contrasted with the more or less violent results of cathartics and associates with medicines. Moreover so far as observed, it does not lose its effectiveness after six months of steady use.

Cordially yours,
H. W. B.

Cereal Meal should not be confused with any other foods or with medicines.

It is simply a combination, scientifically worked out by a prominent Physician, of definite cereals which provide the digestive properties, lubrication and stimulation to the intestines which our ordinary foods totally lack and which induce normal, natural and perfect evacuation.

Eaten daily, it absolutely insures one against Auto Intoxication and permanently relieves Constipation.

Though on the market but a short time it is now being used in 4500 homes in the State of Massachusetts alone.

Cereal Meal can be obtained at the better Grocers and Druggists—if yours has not it, the H. B. Pierce Co. of Boston will inform you where it can be obtained.

The strongest of guarantees goes with each package. If you are not entirely pleased with Cereal Meal, in every way, your dealer is authorized to refund the purchase price if you return the unused portion to him as unsatisfactory.—Adv.

WHY YOU NEED IRON—

To make you strong and "brainy" and put the power into your blood to overcome disease germs

PRACTICAL ADVICE ON HOW TO DEVELOP GREAT ENERGY AND ENDURANCE

The food you eat contains carbon. When your food is digested it is absorbed from the intestines into the blood. When the carbon in your food comes in contact with the oxygen carried by the iron in your blood, the carbon and oxygen unite and—nothing they are—they are—energy, thereby giving you great brain strength and endurance. Without enough blood corpuscles to oxygen and without enough iron to make them, you cannot get the most out of your food, so that what you eat does you little or no good. And a weak body that is not getting enough nourishment from its food is the most helpless victim of disease germs. The strongest weapon with which to protect yourself against disease is strength. Without strength, nervousness, nervous prostration, indigestion, insomnia, headache, pimples, boils, and all sorts of poor skin, poor blood, dizziness, fainting spells, and many other troubles are sure to follow. Strength and energy depend entirely upon the amount of iron contained in the blood in organic iron, and nearly all the iron contained in the vegetables you eat, like the iron in spinach, lentils, beans, etc., cannot be used by the system. Nuxated Iron contains iron in such a form that it can be easily assimilated by the blood and carried to every part of the body. Nuxated Iron has been used and highly recommended by many well-known physicians for over fifteen years. Ask your doctor about it. Nuxated Iron is sold by druggists in tablet form only.

MISS WEEKS IS AMBITIOUS

Strenuous Little Dancer in Cohan Show Anxious to Be a Comedienne

By F. J. MacISAAC.
Dramatic Editor.

It was a hot day at the Tremont Theatre. That slogan, "the cool Tremont," means it is cool in the audience if you are sitting motionless, and your most violent exercise is contracting the muscles of your stomach when you laugh.

But back stage where half a hundred people were cavorting, prancing, galloping, pirouetting, plunging, somersaulting and otherwise straining themselves for your benefit, it was decidedly warmish.

Ada Mae Weeks was performing when J. Rosenthal, the company manager, took me by the elbow and pushed me on the stage to "interview somebody, anybody, everybody," as he put it himself.

DOES STRENUOUS WORK

All that Ada Mae does during her ten or fifteen minutes with Andy Tombes is the kind of exercise which Muldoon gives to hefty business men during a two months' course of sprouts. In about ten minutes Ada does as much work as the said business men perform in their whole sojourn with Muldoon and on which they lose many pounds.

And yet Miss Weeks is a small, thin girl of the type which faints when mother suggests that she clean up the kitchen or manicure the dishes in the sink.

"See that white riding habit?" said J. J. Tind it made here in Boston. Cost hundred twenty-five. Lighter than the one she was wearing. That was law to kill her the kind of dancing she does."

Ada Mae wound her performance up with about eight calisthenic and dashed he me into her dressing room. Her dressing room is number two. And thereby hangs a tale.

COHAN SETTLED IT.

In "The O'Brien Girl" are Frits Scholl, Georgia Caine, Ada Mae Weeks and Elizabeth Hines, all regular leading women and all accustomed to not having to share the dressing room as a matter of privilege and hold it against all comers.

When the company came together for the first time there was great merry. The beautiful turned pale at the thought of distributing the dressing rooms. But George M. Cohan is very forgiving. He can face raging lions or four prima donnas on a stage at once. Fortunately for these were all nice girls.

"Will you leave it to me, ladies?" asked George.

They all agreed.

Then a week ago came back with the dressing room assignments. How he worked it out nobody knows, but number two did not figure.

RESCUED "PROP" DOG

Getting back to Ada Mae Weeks, however, the cunning little thing was discovered sitting on a sofa in her dressing room. She had kicked off her shoes and was wiggling her toes. Snapping at them was a wire-haired scotch terrier, snow-white, the same which is used "in one of the scenes in the play.

"He was a property dog," explained Miss Weeks. "But I begged him from Mr. Cohan. Imagine a sweet little puppy like this left to the tender mercies of a property man. Not that he would abuse him, but he might forget to feed him on time, or something like that."

I looked around Miss Weeks' dressing room. Pasted on the walls were interviews with her which had already gotten into print in other papers. One was headed "Miss talks about the stars." It went on to say that Miss Weeks' hobby was astronomy. It seems she knows all about the constellations and the comets and the milky way. It read very learnedly.

"I looked at Miss Weeks. She was reading as erudite and dignified as a tiny little girl in a white riding habit with knickers can look.

STARS AND COMEDY.

"Is this be true? Do you know all these things?"

"Well—er—yes. I am interested in astronomy. You needn't laugh at me. I have a lot of interests outside the theatre. This is my work. When it is over I get just as far from it as I can. I don't talk or think or read about the theatre. I try to develop myself in every way that I can. I do not want to be theatrical in appearance."

"Do you wear bow spectacles?"

"No. I don't need them. I would if I did. So there."

"Well, we won't talk about the stars because you've already done it, and besides I don't know anything about them."

"I talk about them best when the other person doesn't know anything about them," said Miss Weeks, with a flash of the drollery which makes her so delightful on the stage.

"Let's talk about your plans and ambitions."

"I want to be a comedienne," said Miss Weeks. "I started as a dancer a few seasons ago, and then they began shoving me into ingenue parts. I don't want to play ingenues. I think I can be funny and that is what I want to be. The woods are full of dancers and ingenues without me. I may look like an ingenue, but I don't feel like one.

"Do you think I'm funny in this play?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"So do I. And these are the kind of parts I am going to play in the future, with as much more comedy as I can get in them."

So saying, Miss Weeks thrust her feet into her slippers and dashed stagward again.

Miss Elizabeth Zerrahn, one of the most prepossessing and popular of Boston society girls.

The Summer exodus of Boston society maids and matrons has started Europeward, so far the first time since the World War made traveling overseas a dangerous pastime. Even last, although many Americans braved the unsettled conditions reported in France and Great Britain, the Summer travel was way below normal.

This year, however, according to the reports from social circles and a glance at passenger lists, Miss and Mrs. Society is determined to make up for lost time.

Among the first to sail from New York this year will be Melville Davisson Post, author, who is well known in Boston society and literary circles.

Mr. Jackson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Jackson of Roxbury, and the wedding took place at the home of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. John Howes Burton, "Albro House," Cedarhurst, L. I.

The Rev. Arthur L. Bumpus, rector of Trinity Church, Howlett, L. I., performed the ceremony.

The newly wedded pair are to sail for Italy soon, where Mr. Jackson, who is a singer, is to continue his studies.

Friends of Guy Major, the pianist, were sorry to learn that his marriage to Miss Lois Austen Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Warner of Fall River, has been indefinitely postponed because of the musician's illness. The ceremony was to have taken place today.

FATHER FOUND TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY VERY SICK

Was Thin, No Appetite, Had Swollen Lips, Stomach Pains, Itching Nose

A hardy woodsman and enthusiastic fisherman, Joseph K. Lane, of Lincoln, Maine, has a very interesting record to report. He writes: "As a boy, thirty-seven years ago, I began to take Dr. True's Elixir. Once after six months hauling logs, I came out of the woods and found my two-year-old boy very sick. He was thin, had no appetite, had swollen lips, pains in stomach, an itching nose was suffering from constipation, for months.

"I had not been in the house an hour when an elderly lady—a good neighbor—came in and told my wife to get a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir, saying she had seen numbers of similar cases which it had relieved.

"My boy was given a half dozen doses of Elixir when he passed a lot of little worms, and right away began to show improvement; he began soon to eat with a relish, play around and look healthy. He did not have to take a full bottle, and in later years, whenever he got off his feed, a few doses would straighten him out quick.

"When I get constipated, a couple of teaspoons of Dr. True's Elixir fix me O. K.

"My son is grown up now and has a family of six children, and he was practically raised his family on Dr. True's Elixir. The children go out and get hold of something not good for them. It's hard to watch all the children, and so when they eat something they shouldn't and get sick, the Elixir is given and the family is put in good shape again.

"I have read in the papers you have to take a half dozen bottles of some remedies, but you don't have to do this with Dr. True's Elixir. Simply a few doses and then quick relief. The three generations of Lanes have been kept healthy by using it."

Symptoms of Worms: Offensive breath, swollen upper lip, deranged stomach, occasional pains about the navel, pale face, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose and rectum, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever, constipation.

JOSEPH K. LANE

Nearly every grown up and every child needs a Laxative. The fond parents safeguard the health of their children by keeping their bowels in condition. In Dr. True's Elixir only pure herbs are used. No harmful drugs. Keep the bowels regular by using Dr. True's Elixir. At all dealers. 3 sizes. Buy the larger size.

ESPERANTO SANK IN 20 MINUTES

sank twenty minutes after striking a submerged wreck early Monday morning.

Captain Benham told the following story:

"We anchored two and a half miles off the Northwest light on the south side of the island late on Sunday afternoon. Sunday night there was a fresh northeast breeze with quite a heavy swell and it was foggy.

HIT SUBMERGED WRECK.

"We anchored there for shelter but got under way at 4 a. m. on Monday. The weather had cleared somewhat, but it was still hazy. I sailed to the end of the Northwest bar to see if there were any fish off that point, but found that the prospects were poor, so I decided to go to the Northeast bar. We were sailing along south of the island making six or seven knots with our bank sails, when she struck a submerged wreck at 5:15 o'clock.

"This submerged wreck is south by west fro mthe Northwest light and about a mile due south of the beach, and in six fathoms of water. The impact was a heavy one and planking was torn off our hull on the port side just under the main hatch. Pieces of the planking floated to the surface on our port beam.

"The vessel started to settle at once. The majority of the men were below in the forecastle, while the watch was on deck. was at the wheel, but was standing along side it.

SANK QUICKLY

"As soon as she struck I ordered the pumps to be put into use, but they were useless and the forecastle was quickly filling. About five minutes after she struck I ordered the dories to be launched and six were put over from each side. The vessel was quickly settling and on finding that she was doomed I ordered her abandoned about ten or twelve minutes after striking the submerged wreck. The men got into the dories as soon as they were put over.

"I stayed alongside the vessel in a dory until she sank. She settled down by the head. We then jockeyed around. We could not see the island, and it was too rough to land, so we decided to stay in the vicinity until the weather cleared. An hour later we sighted the Elsie about two miles to the eastward, so we rowed to her and were taken on board.

"Captain Geel then sailed the Elsie back to where the Esperanto had sunk, and we circled the sunken vessel.

"Then the Elsie was headed for Halifax, and here we are."

Captain Geel, skipper of the Elsie, said he at first intended to land the survivors of the Esperanto on Sable Island, but because of the heavy surf he was forced to take them to this port.

The shipwrecked men, from Captain Benham down, were in good health and spirits when they went ashore today, and were apparently little the worse for their experiences.

Captain Geel, who is a native of Maine, although he has lived in Yarmouth for the past twenty years, expressed much satisfaction over giving up the Esperanto's men. He was unable to linger in port, however, and announced his intention of resuming his salt fishing trip immediately. His vessel at present has about 200,000 pounds of fish, and it is believed the Esperanto carried about the same amount.

BRITISH WORKERS LIFT COAL EMBARGO

London, June 1.—Foreign coal, much of it American, was again flowing into Great Britain today as a result of the decision of the railway men and transport workers to lift the embargo. At a long conference of representatives of these two branches of labor's "triple alliance" last night it was decided that the "blockade" against foreign coal should be abandoned at once.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE MOTION PICTURE WORLD

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

MOVIE STARS rush in where angels fear to tread—and make such a hit that they are urged to encore. While every one looked askance at Mexico and didn't venture further than it than gunshot distance from the border, Louise Glaum, J. Parker Read, Jr., star, coolly traveled into the country and took Mexico City by storm.

President Alvaro Obregon, President of Mexico—just now—held an official reception for Miss Glaum at which the entire diplomatic and social life of the capital was represented. President Obregon became so much interested in motion picture work as explained to him by Miss Glaum that he asked for a private showing of my newest picture, "I Am Guilty," which was seen here at the Park Theatre some weeks ago.

Miss Glaum was present at the showing in the palace where the President's staff and personal friends were invited and was interested in the criticisms and appreciation of the audience. "They have original and very logical views on the subject of motion pictures," she said, "and have made by visit to Mexico City a helpful as well as delightful one."

CAMERA CLICKS.

MARY MILES MINTER sails from New York on Thursday for Paris, London and Southern France, partly to get new clothes for next season's films, and partly for a vacation and rest.

MARY PICKFORD is boasting so much about the Mary Pickford baseball team, made up of the directors, players, and camera-men working on her productions, that Katherine MacDonald is organizing a team at her studio to stage a little competition.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY have signed up Lila Lee for another year's work as leading lady. Miss Lee admits that the next year will probably see her back on the stage.

WARD CRANE will play opposite Irene Castle in her first Hodkinson production, "A Broadway Bride."

THE MODERN Maid and Beacon Theatre tries this week offers two exceptional bills. Alice Brady in "The Land of Hope," Mary Miles Minter in a picturization of the stage play, "Jerry," retitled "Don't Call Me Little Girl," and a new Larry Semon comedy, "The Rent Collector," are shown.

"The Land of Hope" gives Miss Brady a better opportunity than usual to show what she can do. In the role of a Polish immigrant she gives a vivid emotional performance as well as doing a good bit of character work. Miss Brady is an earnest worker and an intense one. She studies her part and makes one realize that what she does is the result of work, research and untiring effort. She is a real artist and will do even greater work than she already has.

Marya Nisla comes to America to visit her sister's "the home." Her first disillusionment comes when she finds that the Statue of Liberty is not made of gold. Her second comes when she finds that her sister's "fine home" is pure bluff—a typical American trait, they assure her.

She, however, refuses to be content to live their life, and forges ahead to a career. A Russian dancer becomes interested in her, and she becomes a star with a Russian ballet. The story is good during four reels, but the fifth falls lamentably, petering out to a weak and flimsy finish. Miss Brady makes the film a success.

BRIARCLIFF FAIR.

"DON'T CALL Me Little Girl," which would be far better under the original title, "Jerry," is quite one of the best farces we have seen on the screen. Seldom can a film writer, for some unexplained reason, give us farce, pure and simple. It is always a mixture of rather heavy comedy and slapstick. Jerry, however, is neither.

Jerry Doubleday comes home from finishing school in time for her aunt's wedding, which has been postponed for ten years. Aunt Joan is an old-fashioned girl who wears hats that remind her fiance of his mother. The fiance, Monty Wade, is quite the opposite, an attractive chap with new-fashioned ideas.

Jerry's mother, who tries to pass as "twenty-eight," finds fault with Jerry's grown-up appearance. Jerry refuses to become younger and, running off after knocking down the chauffeur, jumps into Monty's car, left conveniently by the curbing, and drives off. Monty chases her, falls in love with her, and then—as the cartoonist says, "The fun begins." There is action in every foot of the film.

Miss Minter is captivating as the little fiend, Jerry. The role suits her far better than the old "believing in fairies," whimsical type did. She gets the most out of the situations and keeps the action going along at breakneck speed.

LOEW'S NEW STATE THEATRE
The Shubert Theatres is expected by the management for the year to show an increase of 15% on the common stock, pay substantial stock dividends at some future time, and exceed the achievement of the Loew's Orpheum Theatre.
The same management in Loew's Orpheum Theatre in about six years has paid a stock dividend of 120% and is now arranging another of 100%. The Shubert Theatres has issued only 6,000 preferred stock and 12,000 of the common stock, besides building up a substantial surplus and paying off all mortgages on the property.
We own and offer only 10,000 shares, the remainder of the common stock of Loew's New State Theatre. Price attractive.

NEW ENGLAND TRADE REVIEW

Business Improvement Is Slow but Sure

That the inertia of business is overcome with difficulty after an almost complete stoppage is becoming more manifest. The onward movement now in progress is but a few months old, and the present spirit of optimism is younger still. The fundamentals of business, discount rates, labor costs and the like, have shown but unmistakable progress in the right direction, which indicates that, unless the unforeseen occurs, business is bound to improve. Real as the improvement is, it is slow, and the past week has been no exception.

The outstanding news of the week is the signing of the emergency tariff bill by the President. The opinion of economists all over the country seems to be favorable to such regulations as are contained in the bill, especially for the comparatively brief period of six months in which they are in force.

There are, however, at least two adverse criticisms. One is based on the fact that the normal balance in the world between raw materials and manufactured commodities is now upset. Any restorative measure now must take account of the fact that there is an enormous surplus of raw materials over manufactured products. The tariff bill, by placing an artificial barrier about this country, will retard, it is said, the return to a normal balance, and eventually, although not at once, affect conditions in this country unfavorably.

The other criticism is founded on a belief that foreign countries will not buy from us if they cannot sell to us. We must make up our minds, these critics say, to an unfavorable balance between imports and exports as the inevitable result of the peace that we are a creditor nation at present. Sound conditions in foreign countries will not be restored, they continue, as long as the American markets are partially closed to them.

Whatever the ultimate value of the emergency tariff bill may be, the next few months will test its immediate value, and the result should be favorable to reviving business for the present at least.

WOOL TRADE LIGHT.

The Boston wool market continues to feel the influence of the accumulating new wool which is piling up on the already large stocks of the old. The emergency tariff bill should have its beneficent effect on this unfortunate feature.

The purchase of a big stock of South American wool by a large mill has caused considerable interest among Summer street merchants. Some rumors place the quantity as high as 14,000 bales. Whether this indicates a prospective revival in the near future, or is merely speculative, is uncertain.

Of more definite indication of improvement was the sale of 75 per cent. of the government offering of 2,000,000 pounds of carpet wools. Increased volumes of wool are being sold in the regular market as well, although trading is still very dull.

In the cotton market improvement continues slowly, marked by an increased demand and steadying prices. Sheetings and ginghams have suffered a reduction in price. Demand for certain fancy fabrics like organdies, voiles, and Swisses shows a marked improvement.

LEATHER MARKET FIRMER.

Increasing firmness has characterized the leather market during the past week. Supplies in stock have decreased to such an extent that it is now necessary to wait until hides are "made" before any appreciable quantity is secured.

Export trade continues to be fairly good, and seems to hold prospects of substantial improvement. Upper leather, particularly, shows an increase in export demand.

The shoe business continues to be a little uneven, with a continued improvement in the demand for women's wear. The merger of the McElwain Company with the International Shoe Company of St. Louis, which lately acquired the Kistler, Lesh tanneries, has created a considerable stir among leather men, and interesting developments are expected.

A survey by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston shows that seven Boston department stores had 32 per cent. less stock of shoes on hand, measured by their retail selling price, on May 1, 1921, than on the corresponding date in 1920. The net sales, in dollars, of shoes of these stores for the first four months of this year was within eight-tenths of one per cent. of the amount sold last year in those months. Taking into consideration the reduction in prices this year, this survey indicates a very encouraging improvement.

TROLLEY HEARING ON IN HAVERHILL

Haverhill, June 1.—An arbitration board composed of Assistant District Attorney Thomas H. Mahoney of Suffolk County, chairman, P. A. Sullivan, Lowell, formerly president of the Boston Street Railway Company, and Attorney James H. Vahey of Boston opened hearings here on the wage question, involving 500 employes of the Northeastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company.

The men are receiving 80 cents an hour and the company seeks to reduce the wage to 50 cents.

EXHIBIT WILL AID MACHINERY MEN
New York Business Group Plan Establishment for U. S. Manufacturers

Plans are now under way to aid American machinery manufacturers in obtaining their share of the world's machinery trade. Announcement has been made by a group of New York business men that the Manufacturers' Exhibition Company, Inc., has established a permanent machinery exhibition in New York City to attract foreign as well as American buyers.

L. R. Duffield, general manager of the company, who was formerly connected with the Philadelphia Bourse and the Grand Central Palace, declared that New York City will have the largest permanent exhibition in the world and that everything would be done to attract the buyer, both foreign and domestic.

The permanent exhibition and salesroom will be housed in the Central Mercantile Building, located at Sixth avenue, Eighteenth to Nineteenth streets.

50,000 FEET TO FLOOR.

The entire building contains an area of 650,000 square feet. There is 50,000 square feet of space on a floor, and the carrying capacity is 100 pounds per square foot.

The space leased by the Manufacturers' Exhibition Company is laid out in a most attractive manner and spaces are arranged so as to show machinery and modern appliances to the best possible advantage.

The Manufacturers' Exhibition Company offers to manufacturers a permanent display, a New York office and storage space on long term leases, if desired.

A long-term lease will insure the manufacturer permanent home and enable him to build and equip a display which he could not otherwise do if it were a question of moving from place to place.

OFFERS CLEARING HOUSE.

An all-year-round exhibition located in such a spacious structure as the Central Mercantile Building will afford manufacturers the best sort of clearing house for their goods.

In localizing all of the machinery interests in close proximity to each other, the prospective purchaser and the seller share equally in the advantages gained by such a grouping.

FILM SINGER

© Bachrach.

Marion Godbout, Haverhill soprano, now rendering classical solos with "The Woman God Changed," at the Colonial.

Marion Godbout who is singing the "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto" at the Riesenfeld production of "The Woman God Changed" at the Colonial Theatre, is a Haverhill girl who has had considerable experience in grand opera. Miss Godbout was one of the prima donna sopranos of the Boston English Grand Opera company; she sang one of the roles in the open air production of "Aida" at Braves Field last season, the biggest musical performance ever given in America, and she has been engaged by Hugo Riesenfeld to sing at his New York theatres, the Rivoli and Rialto, from which so many singers have graduated into the Metropolitan Opera.

5 KILLED, 50 ARE SHOT IN TULSA

Torch Used in Ten Hours of Rioting, Armed Bands Fighting Negroes

Tulsa, Okla., June 1.—After ten hours of race rioting, extending over the entire city, two white men are known to be dead today and about fifty are known to be injured. There are no known negro fatalities, though reports are that several were killed. Thousands of shots were fired.

The white men who were killed were shot through the head. The city was patrolled by fifty automobiles filled with armed men, while 100 armed men with their centre on the Frisco railway station, within a stone's throw of an armed mob of 1,000 negroes, formed the nucleus of the gathering white forces.

Hundreds of armed white men were pushing into the "Black Belt," setting fire to scores of houses and firing volleys at houses where snipers were observed.

Two thousand negroes were reported walking out of town to the north where no armed whites are barring the way. This morning the Tulsa hospitals reported receiving one more dead white man and thirty injured. Hundreds of automobiles were dashing through the streets, practically every one with one or more rifles sticking out of their sides.

The rioting grew out of the arrest of Dick Rowland, a negro bootblack, on the charge of assulting a white girl.

6,417 Births Sets New Providence Record

Providence, June 1.—According to statistics compiled by City Registrar Charles V. Chapin, 6,417 children were born in this city during the year 1920. This number breaks all birth records in the history of Providence. The nearest approach to this figure was in the year 1917 when 6,391 children were born.

CUT RAILROAD PAY 12 P. C.

Roads Will Save $400,000,000 Yearly by Decision of U. S. Labor Board

Washington, June 1.—President Harding today made his first executive call. Shortly after 9:30 the President left the White House and walked to the Interstate Commerce Commission, where he went into conference with Chairman Clark and discussed the railroad situation.

A great meeting of the representatives of all the railway unions affected by the wage cut decision of the railway labor board is to be held in Chicago June 7 and 28. At that meeting, in all probability, the question of strike or work will be decided.

Chicago, June 1.—Pay of the average railroad man will be reduced 12 per cent. on July 1. This was announced by the United States Railroad Labor Board.

This will pull the average railroad salary down from $141 a month to $125, and will result in an annual saving for the railroads of $400,000,000.

6,000 British Troops Arrive in Silesia

WHEN the valiant Commodore Perry, on his flagship, the U. S. S. Susquehanna, in the Bay of Yedo, on July 2nd, 1354, received a visit from Vice-Governor Nagazima Saboros'ke, the curtain of seclusion which surrounded ancient Japan was pierced. And internationalism was begun which now embraces the entire Far East. America and Europe, long bound together by ties of kinship, have been in the last few years brought even closer by the immortal bridge of ships and soldiers.

Beats and Heart Beats in a Camera Review of What Is Interesting Today

CHASE ME, GIRLS, I'M HANDSOME! This male beauty is M. Andre Brule, handsomest man in France, who is now palpitating the hearts of London ladies by his ardent wooing. On the stage of course. He recently won the French beauty contest for man. We'll bet a lady finger John Barrymore is better looking. (Int.)

HARDING AS NATURALIST. The President was discovered playing a new role the other day while showing a group of children, members of the John Burroughs Club of a Washington school, where an old white owl hoots every night from a big tree on the White House grounds. The children were delighted with the "lesson." So was the President. (Int.)

SOCIETY BUDS BLOOM AT RACES. Among the Almanach de Gotha folk at the opening of the Belmont Park track was Mrs. Charles Emery. Slender. Pretty. Rich. Nuff sed. (Int.)

HOT DOG, BOY! Yessir, he is a pretty hot pup sometimes, 'specially when he is called out on a bad fire. He is Felix, only canine fireman in the world. Home is in Chicago. Climbs ladders n'everything. Strayed into station house with broken leg. Recovered and became first-class fire chaser. (Int.)

SHE'S BACK AGAIN, FELLAS! This latest Summer gown is like poor old Gunga Din — not much before an' less than 'erf o' that behind. Is brocaded, with belt of jewels. Will take it on vacation in a pill box. Good ht. But pretty. Yes, both.

KISS ME AGAIN. That's what little Gloria is saying. Who is Gloria? Gosh, there's only one Gloria. Caruso's daughter. She has just sailed for Europe with her papa and mamma. Bon voyage. (Int.)

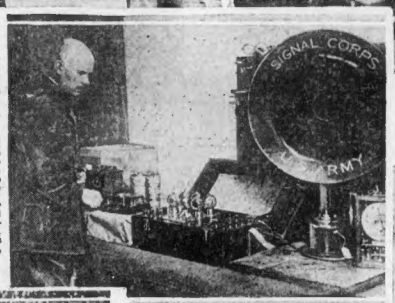
GETTIN' GOATS. This California bathing girl has her goat, and she's gosh darn near got our goat, too. It is now passe to trail a big ugly looking English bull pup around with you. Go buy a goat and be fashionable. Be careful somebody doesn't get it, though. Mighty unmanageable things, these goats. (Int.)

MEET UP WITH THE NEXT WORLD'S CHAMP. Peggy Marlowe of Los Angeles weighs but 110 pounds and she is only nineteen years old, oh but what a mean wallop she packs in that right mit of hers. Photos illustrate the ease with which she dispatches the male vamp. One right across and then—butterflies, as Mr. Conway says. She also won a beauty prize. We'll bet on her fighting chances. (U. & I.)

FIRST BLOOD FOR AMERICA. Lord Rocksavage, British polo player, who was severely injured in recent practice game with American team. Played at Hurlingham, England. Photo taken just before accident. (Int.)

OO-O-O, HOW SHE COULD VAMP! Speaking of Cleopatra, of course. This young lady with the tight and feathery head is Dorothy Devore and she is garbed just like the "Nile Serpent" when that lady put the skids under our old friend Marc. Dorothy has more gew-gaws—there's a pretty word—on her fingers and toes than a pawnbroker's bride. No, Clarence, she doesn't own the jewelry. It belongs to the movie company. (W. W.)

HAS AN EAR TO BUSINESS. In fact the headgear is what saves him from the dread cauliflower. Jack Dempsey, right, and Jack Renault, one of his sparring partners. One can't blame the lesser Jack for getting all the protection he can. That's us all over, Mabel. (U. & I.)



PASS THE SALAD, PLEASE! We'd hate to eat salad as long as this big crab would last in the average household. This spider species of crab is declared to be the largest crab ever caught. Captured in Yellow Sea by New York man. Monster said to be 500 years old when taken. Its front claws are fifty-six inches long. A good idea of its size can be gained in comparison with the little girl. (Int.)

LET'S TAKE A WALK, GIRLS! There is nothing like having a good start, so when George Cummings, world champion professional walker, began his 420-mile hike to Edinborough, Scotland, from London, he had these buxom girls accompany him on the first mile around the track before breaking into the road. George is bringing up in the rear. There's no reason given for it, either. Well, some men are funny. (W. W.)

HEART BEATS heard hundreds of miles away. Impossible, you say. Science has proved that the heart beat of a man can be transmitted hundreds of miles by the use of an acutely delicate amplifying apparatus. The photo above shows the heart beats being recorded through the use of newly invented instruments, and below the patient, miles away from the recorder. The transmitter rests by its own weight over the patient's heart and then vibrations are set up which are recorded at the other end. (U. & I.)

SAMPLE SONG TEST PICTURES ARE PRINTED TODAY

Readers of the Boston American who have made up their minds to take part in the new $6,000 Songs of the World Title Test will find three "sample" pictures on as many different pages of this edition.

These pictures, drawn by the gifted young man who has entertained us in the Movie Play Title Test, illustrate the titles of three well known songs, namely, "The Girl Behind the Gun," "Kisses" and "The Bells."

It will be observed by the "sample" pictures that the method of the artist will be the same in the next Test as that which he employed with such great success in the Movie Play Title Test. His secret, the Test Editor makes bold to say, will be revealed next Saturday, with the printing of the Correct Title of Picture No. 33.

NO. 33 IS REAL TEST.

Up to the present, in this re-printing of Movie Play Title Test Pictures, the "old" Test has been comparatively easy. It was not to have been expected that 12,529 participants would all pick the Correct Title EVERY day, and some exceptionally bright people have missed one or two titles. The great bulk of participants come to the present point, however, with twenty-six, twenty-seven or twenty-eight Correct Titles.

With the appearance of No. 33, participants will begin to fall by the wayside. The Artist is on his mettle. "Too easy, eh?" he is saying. "Well, I'll show them!"

Many, if not most of those, who fathomed No. 32 had learned the lesson in previous Tests of the same sort. They were using the dictionary. They were taking nothing for granted. If they had any desire to grab at "The Sea Master," "When My Ship Comes In," "Some Liar" or "Throwing the Bull," they smothered it and, title by title, consulted Mr. Webster, Mr. Worcester or the New Standard. They found—what YOU will find, when No. 33 comes along in Saturday's Boston American.

ARTIST'S EXPLANATION.

The Correct Title of Test Picture No. 30 reprinted today, appears under the picture. It is "Good References."

"In this picture," says the Artist, "I have endeavored to show a calendar, a clock, a dictionary, other books, a thermometer and an hour glass. I omitted the days of the week from the calendar on purpose. It was my intention to show 'a' calendar—that is, any calendar. I think it will be admitted that these books and articles are mighty 'Good References.'"

At the close of Title Test Headquarters last night the checkers had gone over 17,118 parcels, leaving 14,261 to be passed upon. The number of checkers at work yesterday was forty-five, the total number of parcels checked 4,369 and the average for each checker 94. When this "first" checking has been completed, as has been reported here before, those parcels with a record of forty or more Correct Titles will be rechecked. The Director in charge at Title Test Headquarters promises nothing—for he has been through the mill many times before—but gives us hope that the List of Winners will be available for publication about June 19. This means that the result will be known to him approximately one week earlier, for it will take a few days to visit the Nine Big Winners and get their photographs and stories.

NEXT TEST FOR $6,000.

You may have observed that the next Test will be a $6,000 affair.

There will be two $1,000 awards.

This merely to add to the interest.

The titles used in the new Test will be those of well known songs. In other respects the Test will be similar to the Movie Play Title Test.

The First Picture in the Songs of the World Test will be printed one week from today, on Wednesday, June 8. A list of Song Titles will be printed with it. In that List will be one title which will fit Test Picture No. 1 better than any other title in the List.

The important thing for every participant is to watch closely for the re-printing next Saturday of Movie Title Test Picture No. 33. In this picture—and title—Mr. Artist gives himself away. Up to that time he had been playing, loafing, getting his money for "next to nothing." With the appearance of No. 33 he settled down to work and the number of actual candidates for the $1,000 was lessened not merely by hundreds but by thousands.

It was truly a great Test.

The next will be ten times better. This way for reserved seats!

SOME HOPS ANSWERS.

F. S.—The Title Test Editor is so excited about it that he almost forgot to mention that a parcel containing fifty-two Correct Titles was uncovered in yesterday's checking. Today's Leader is not a New Voter. He resides in Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain.

Dr. Sunshine, Glen Cove, Me.—The title should read exactly as it appeared on the day the picture was printed. The picture you refer to is not one of the so called "stickers." The title can be found in what the man is saying. "You Never Can Tell," one of the players in the game was a "sucker," and the others were out to "trim" him, we might say the victim was "Framed."

Athol—I think you will do much better in the next one if you watch the Title Test as it is unfolded beginning with Picture No. 33.

Homebearker, Providence—What a horrible nom de plume!

J. L., Brighton—The motion is carried.

WANTS HARVEY RECALLED

Senator McKellar Calls Ambassador's Speech "False as Satan Himself"

Washington, June 1.—Immediate recall of the American ambassador to Great Britain, George W. Harvey, for his "afraid not to fight" speech in London was demanded on the floor of the Senate by Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee. He styled the ambassador's statement as "false as Satan himself."

Referring to President Harding's speech at Arlington, the Senator commended the President for his "rebuke and denial" of the Harvey statement.

"The statement constitutes a libel upon our government, a desecration of the memory of nearly 100,000 young men who gave up their lives, an insult to the 5,000,000 soldiers who enlisted, and a wanton libel upon every patriot in the land," the Senator continued. "They are the words of a craven and sycophant."

CARPENTIER EATS ANYTHING HE LIKES, INCLUDING PASTRY

CHEF JUST SCORNS PUTTING FIGHTER ON A DIET

Food won the World War.

Will it win the world's championship battle between Jack Dempsey, American title holder, and Georges Carpentier, idol of France and champion of Europe?

Has either fighter a superior diet which will help to put him into better condition than that of his opponent?

In order to find out the Boston American sent representatives to the camps at Atlantic City and Manhasset. They interviewed the cooks and learned on what kinds of food the fighters are training.

Later the diets were submitted to Dr. Dudley A. Sargent of the Sargent School of Physical Education, who declared Carpentier's to be the best, and Miss Eunice Clark, dietician of the Household Nursing Association, who preferred Dempsey's.

In the opening installment the Boston American told of Dempsey's diet. Today's installment reveals that of Carpentier. On following days their diets will be discussed by Dr. Sargent and Miss Clark.

By HARRY BENWELL

In contrast to Dempsey, Georges Carpentier is a comparatively light eater.

The French fighter eats a little of everything he likes, including pastry and potatoes, even drinking coffee, but only with his breakfast, and then half milk.

Carpentier eats comparatively little bread, and never has the same meat two days in succession. Furthermore, most of his meats are roasted or broiled.

According to French custom Carpentier's first meal is light, but because he is a pugilist, training for an important contest, it is substantiated by an omelet.

But Marcot, the chef, wishes it distinctly understood that the European champion will eat anything. "Diet," he ejaculated contemptuously, when interviewed through an interpreter. "Bah."

According to Descamps, the chef was brought to this country with the French champ because: "nous n'almons pas la cuisine Americaine," as he deprecatingly explained. Which means that the French manager would have the public believe that Carpentier, who has been here before of course, does not like our cooking.

Inasmuch however, as Carpentier has always trained on French cooking, it was only logical for him to desire the same conditions to obtain while preparing for the bout with Dempsey. At any rate, Marcot is at the Manhasset, Long Island, station and very much in evidence.

Eats Same Things Out of Training

"For his breakfast," the chef said, "Georges has an omelet of three or four eggs, bread and jam, and eats it from half an hour to an hour after with coffee with much milk. That is all. For dejeuner I give him one order of meat, one order of vegetables, and one dessert.

"Georges eats pastry. French pastry, for his dinner he eats about the same as at his breakfast. I do not give him the same meat two days in succession and all his meats as a rule are roasted or broiled. He drinks the wine or liqueur, coffee or tea except his cafe au lait with his breakfast. He has cafe glace after the evening meal. Georges eats fruit, and yes, potatoes.

"You see," he concluded with an expressive shrug of the shoulders, "il mange de tout." (He eats all.) Beefsteaks and pork chops are what Carpentier did not eat much, and that he would consume practically the same things if he were not in training.

"Georges will eat regent of brick and sauce of broken stone for his dinner," said Henri playfully, while posing for the Boston American artist and photographer. Clad in a dazzling white uniform and cap, Marcot stood in a garden left of the table on which was a sidewalk brick. With carving knife upraised he was apparently caught in the act of slicing the brick. A sheath containing two more knives was strung at his waist. The engaging smile illuminated his somewhat battered countenance, for Henri is also a boxer and was as such Carpentier's sparring partners.

Marcot Does Cooking for Entire Camp

Despite the fact that he has been fighting in the ring for twelve years, boxing is only a sideline with this twenty-eight-pounder. Frenchman, who is a chef of parts, a "cordon bleu," as his countrymen say.

Although he does all the cooking for the French camp, in addition to his work as a sparring partner, Henri found time to oblige the Boston American representatives by posing and submitting to an interview. He was extremely good natured about it and strove earnestly to please. In fact this earnestness was carried to such an extent that in one of the first poses he assumed a stern, uncompromising expression that desolated the photographer.

Britton, Jack Curley's high hand man, was seized with an inspiration however, and called in French: "Henri, pense a la poule." The response was immediate, a broad smile wreathing over the chef's face, for he had been asked to think of his "chicken."

The chef, who is about five feet eight inches tall, weighs 76 kilos or about 167 pounds, and fights as a middleweight, or "poids moyen," as it is called in France. With Paul Journee, giant heavyweight, he takes his turn as one of Carpentier's sparring partners, in addition to cooking for the entire camp.

Descamps Yields to Public Opinion

The camp is delightfully located on the Matthews estate, some distance outside the town of Manhasset. It consists of a quaint old farmhouse, set some distance back from the road, embowered by lilac bushes and trees, which shut out the sight of passersby.

In the rear are the outbuildings and a large barn, in which Carpentier's gymnasium has been set up. Adjoining the barn is an open air ring, surrounded by the high board fence, tipped with barbed wire.

Carpentier, however, or rather his manager, Descamps, has yielded somewhat to public opinion, and in consequence the French contender for the championship now works out three days a week under the eyes of the newspaperman. Furthermore it is understood that a regular publicity bureau will be established under the direction of Jack Curley and Colonel E. Tannenbaum of the New York police reserve.

The atmosphere at the French training camp is entirely different from that at Dempsey's. There are no crowds, no roistering ballyhoo-ers, but instead a number of quiet, gentlemanly, unassuming Frenchmen who go about their work in business-like fashion and plainly dislike Carpentier.

The latter, despite his four years in the ring and the many gruelling contests he has endured, is as carefree as a schoolboy, when there are no strangers about. He romps with his dog, who is also a war veteran, loses with his wife and child and delights to play with children, as does Dempsey.

Dr. Dudley A. Sargent will discuss the diets of the two fighters in tomorrow's Boston American.

DEMPSEY OKAYS HARRY ERTLE

Ideal Third Man in Ring, Jack Thinks; Boosts Danny Sullivan, Too

By Jack Dempsey,

Heavyweight Champion of the World.

Copyright, 1921, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 1.—I have it pretty straight that Harry Ertle of Jersey City will be third man in the ring with the Frenchman and me, and that Danny Sullivan will be the alternate. If Ertle should be unable to work Danny could fill the bill as well as any man in the world.

Both of these men suit me and I understand that Carpentier and his manager, Francois Descamps, think well of them.

I have seen both work often and like the way they handle a fight. They are on the job all of the time and know the game. Both use their heads and with either of them in the ring July 2 there will be no chance of a bloomer.

I have a new phonograph sent us in the house now and my trainer, Teddy Haynes, and I are working it overtime. The phonograph was sent me by a firm in Chicago with the usual kind wishes and I like the music and lots of it. I would like to be able to play a musical instrument of some sort, but since I can't I make the best of the canned tunes. Music always cheers me up and keeps me in good humor. When I get tired of reading, which is usually in about half an hour, I put on a record.

I dropped into town for a hair-cut and though there were thousands of men and women marching up and down the boardwalk no one recognized me.

I was congratulating myself upon my good luck, when I reached the barber shop and found some one who knew me. The next half hour was one of the most embarrassing ones I ever spent. Everybody who could, piled into that little shop while the street outside was crowded with people. I never had so many questions shot at me in all my life. And the worst of the lot was the barber himself. The next time I get a haircut I'm going to bring a barber out to the camp.

Just WHISTLE Wrapped in Bottles

BOXING FANS GET REST

Promoters Also Appreciate Layoff Braves, Track Sports and Health

By JACK CONWAY

There are no boxing shows scheduled for Boston this week. And nobody interested in the welfare of the ring game is showing any signs of disappointment. During the past year there have often been as many as six shows in one week. Of course there have not been enough satisfactory boxers to complete all of the programs. The result has been that the same second and third-raters have often appeared in local rings twice a week, while a regiment of fourth and fifth rate fighters, eager to avoid real work, have added to the misery of those fans who had the stamina to take in the majority of the contests. Fewer shows will give some of the alleged boxers an opportunity to secure other employment, while the really satisfactory performers can now take well deserved rests between bouts.

The promoters are also probably enjoying the lull in the grand old game of swat. The ring men and their managers had arrived at a state of mind where they believed that the poorest type of boxer was worth more for a half hour's effort than is paid to many bank presidents for a month's work. Some of the promoters were so unwise as to meet the demands of the get-rich-quick fighters and their managers in the face of falling attendances. Their lack of judgment cost them many thousands of dollars. No boxer is worth any more than a fair percentage of the money he can attract to the box office.

Boston is rapidly becoming a National League baseball city. If the Braves can continue their victory habits, George Washington Grant form will reap a financial harvest out of his ball club this year. The baseball public of this city sees some hope in the Braves and will patronize this club if its owner shows them the least bit of consideration. The Red Sox, once popular idols, no longer have the good will of the public as a result of the disastrous sales of ball players.

* * *

Charles E. Parker, track expert for this newspaper, says that the New England A. A. U. plans to send only a handful of athletes to the national championships at San Francisco in July. Lack of funds will probably be the excuse given by the local Solomons of amateur athletics for their failure to have a real representation in the title contests. Maybe if some of the men who rule the destinies of New England A. A. U. did a little more acting and less talking it would not be necessary to cry poverty when it becomes necessary for this section of the country to do something really worth while in athletics.

* * *

You can no longer give poor weather as an excuse for your failure to indulge in some health-giving form of outdoor exercise. Make the best of the present good weather by taking part in some competitive branch of sport. The undertakers, of course, will not approve of your program. Your family and friends will.

Plenty of Action Is Looked for at Bike Track Tonight

Vincent Madonna is likely to find stiff opposition tonight at the Revere Cycle Track when he meets Clarence Carman and Willie Coburn in a thirty-five-mile motor-paced race. When Carman is right there are few men in the world who can take his measure.

EAST BOSTON HIGH WINS ON TRACK

WATERTOWN IS OUT FRONT

Making Strong Bid for School Baseball Honors in Mystic Valley League

By Fred C. Lane

Coach Bill Higgins of Watertown High is determined to run in the Mystic Valley championship.

Just when things looked all set for the hoisting of the pennant from the flagpole of the Wakefield High School, Watertown came along and gave the dopesters a setback.

Fulton and McCarthy, the much talked of Milton High players, are at it again. This time both roped their bats at batting, both joining the home run club with a four-base smack in the Dedham High game.

Intermediates and juniors taking part in the fourth annual District high track and field meet held at Tech Field under the auspices of the Boston Athletic Association, will find competition in the running events of unusual interest. Many of the best performers in the district will be entered in the meet, which will be run off in two days, Friday and Saturday, June 10 and 11.

* * *

If the present plan goes through of slamming the different league leaders down to one team, those eavesdropping the Kyle English outfit will find a snappy bunch of ball players that excel in all departments of the game.

All games played up to date have been of the walkaway type, no team in the North Shore League yet having come through in today's double bill and by way of beginning right, started Sam Jones, their pitching ace in the open leg slaughter.

The twin defeat on the holiday rather surprised the clan of Duffy, who had confidently counted on some soft picking during the stay in this city, but it afforded just the sort of tonic that was needed, as evidenced in the manner in which the Boston clans captured the third and fourth contests.

GOLF PLAY ON AT WOODLAND

Professionals Are Paired With Woman Golfers in Big Tournament

By Robert E. Harlow

Professionals paired with members of the Woman's Golf Association today in a mixed foursome at the Woodland Golf Club. Miss Elizabeth Gordon was paired with Lou Tellier, Jim Barry professional, and they were favored to win other prizes.

News of the defeat of Miss Stirling in the British open championship was received with sorrow a America. This leaves only the British open, and as the American golfers were thought to have a much better chance of lifting either the amateur or the women's title than the open, it looks as if the 1921 invasion would end in complete disaster. One of our homeboys may save the assault from utter route.

An open 18-hole medal play handicap tournament of the Massachusetts Golf Association will be held Friday and Saturday at the Brockton Country Club. This is the only open meeting this week. The New York team is getting a little practice next Monday by playing Yale-Lawrence's team from the Friars Club.

RED SOX FIGHT FOR TWO MORE

TRIBE READY TO MOVE WEST

Open Invasion Against the Reds on Friday: Percentage of Home Stay .667

By Nick Flatley

The flying Braves took a peek at the Cincinnati Reds on the latter's invading tour and on the strength of what they saw in the first game of the series they are ready to move over to Cincinnati and take up residence in the first division.

No club in the league has been more successful at home than the Wigwam representatives. They have won fourteen and lost seven since the present stand started. This kind of percentage on the road would rocket the club right up into the necks of the Pirates.

After the great holiday surge, it was only natural for the club to drop a game. And even that catastrophe might have been averted but for some rather painful decisions. The umps give 'em as they see 'em, but their vision isn't particularly good sometimes.

The winning streak was raised because the Braves ran into Burleigh Grimes having one of his good days. And even though good fielding would have won the battle, or at least stretched it into extra chapters. The best hitters in the world are entitled to a day off now and then, and the locals have certainly delivered in sufficient number of pinches to satisfy the most fastidious, even Manager Mitchell.

Our Braves have a day off tomorrow and open their foreign attack in Cincinnati Friday. They play four games in Cincy, Pittsburgh and Chicago and five in St. Louis. Then they have six days of baseballing in the sun parlors of New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia.

They return to the Wigwam on June 25, and after five games with the Bird family at home for the greater part of the month, they will [illegible] gatherings when they return for that long engagement.

A Striking Story of a Girl Who Sells Herself, Becomes a Criminal and Then, Under the Uplifting Environment of Real Love, Regains Her Soul.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Jansson, a young and handsome woman is on trial for the deliberate murder of Alastair de Vres, a rich plantation owner who had known her only for a few days. Tom Dillon, District Attorney, brings out the facts of the shooting in a restaurant, while the prisoner excites the wonder of the Court by her beauty and a strange calm and serenity, which makes it seem impossible that she could be guilty. Her lawyer rises. Contrary to expectation he makes no objections to the tactics of the District Attorney. Officer McCarthy is called to the stand and tells how he ordered Anna to go to Tull's after Anna and he got in conversation. He heard of the shooting and hurried to the restaurant. The prisoner is sworn, and McCarthy and Anna face themselves alone on a small island.

This appealing story has been made into a wonderful film drama by Cosmopolitan Productions, and released as a Paramount picture.

"WELL, not so bad as you'd think," she says. There's water. I found it when I looked for something to bathe that cut on your head. And as for food, I've been in these lands awhile before they let me use the place—at Papeete. I was a Canaris, and there's cocoanuts, and there's breadfruit. And the coconuts full of food. You can't eat them raw. I'm here.

I'm turning out my pockets that they may be searched to see no one smuggled a pistol into my cell," I say, and I hand her my pocketknife. She grins at the warder.

"You can make a fire with the cricket of two," she says. "But bananas I do for the present. I'll go off and get some. You needn't worry," she says as she notices me looking at her. "I can't get off the island."

Light on the Wreck

After a while she comes back and sits down.

"I'm not know how you got ashore," I say.

"I don't, I answer. "I know not one bit."

"Was the boat struck," she tells me, "and I were washed over the reef. Something hit you on the head. But I pulled you in, Mister. You went down. You were out. I had a job to get you through the water. Your hair is awful long."

"Well, I got to thank you," I say.

"Don't mind thanking me," she says. "It's me sorry." She's awfully serious. "But I guess you think a life is worth a life."

I say nothing to that.

"Don't you, McCarthy?" she pleads.

"I'm sorry," I tell her. "I'm awful sorry. But I've got to be by and by."

"You are a hard man, McCarthy."

"I'm not a hard man. I'm just a man who tried to do his job in life before they put me on the place—at Papeete. I was a Canaris, and missed me, though. I let her. That took it to make let me go down, when you saw me going. Then would have been free. You ought to 'a' let a stand over and 'er me down."

"No. I couldn't do that!" she says.

"Neither could I let you go."

"In the afternoon I go around the island to see where we are. But there no ship in sight. I see land or a sail or anything. We are just on one of the Pacific atolls as look cold them, away from the of everything but sailing ships trading from isle to isle. I look everywhere—north, east, south and west—and there is nothing but boiling sea, white, muddy, with bits drifting, or floating in the air.

Ten Miles Square

"The island I see is not more than ten miles square, and there are not everywhere about it except around the cove where we land, and that has a coral breakwater. The sand is bright and the water runs green and on the land is all lush. There is a little stream of fresh water, and some cocoanut trees and banana trees and oranges.

"And when I'm standing there a living breaks through the undergrowth and looks at me, and then runs off with a squeal. And for a moment I see that goes pig. I creep and I creep, and I see a pig standing. It is a wild pig, not near human, its nearly human head. For a moment later something in me is sorry there is no one here. I've been put ashore at and others of the old whaling ships that are gone now.

"I look around and I see the island, the sand like gold clean words good with me. Either tell me now you'll let me go when we're passing or I'll kill you."

"I won't. I will. I went. Now Give me my knife."

"I won't. I will let me off or I'll—"

"I'll make a better job with De Vres and I stand on."

"You repeating too much but she wakes while the end. Let's me the gun, and let me have it. Let me, and her throat wasn't and then suddenly rose, her eyes run two big tears down to the corners of her mouth and I turn away.

"I'm going to get a bed of banana leaves and cross. I'm going to get some. I'll get you and make myself. Maybe there's nothing to it, after all. I'll never be sorry. I'll never be sorry. I'll never be sorry."

"Don't be sorry," she said. "You think I'm too bad for—even that? I get up and make myself. Maybe there's nothing to it, after all. I'll never be sorry. I'll never be sorry. I'll never be sorry."

No Good to Her

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—— By B. C. Forbes ——

Do the people in the smaller places get more out of life than those who live in very large cities?

Is the man who attains success in business or finance in a metropolitan city less happy and more harassed than the successful business or financial man in a town of moderate population?

Is there much real fun in being a capitalistic snob in, say, New York or Chicago?

I have been visiting various cities and have been rubbing shoulders with some of their more successful citizens, and these questions came up for discussion. After all, they are not unimportant ones, since we all want to know the pathway to happiness and to pursue it.

Briefly, the views expressed may be summarized thus:

Those who have "arrived" in non-metropolitan cities, men who have attained to positions of prominence through honorable means, prefer their lot to the lot of capitalistic giants of national fame. They declare that the latter do not, as a rule have time to live, that they are slaves to their responsibilities, that their whole time is consumed by pressing business activities and that they have little time for tranquil domestic life.

"Your Schwabs and Garys and Davisons and Lamonts and Swifts and Armours can't call their lives their own," remarked one well-to-do man in a city of about half a million population. "They're tied to a sort of endless driving belt and are kept swirling round and round. They're not their own masters."

Said another business man:

"There's far more true neighborliness and more sociability and more hospitality in our town than could possibly exist in New York. We visit one another's homes. We don't feel that the only possible way of entertaining friends is to take them to a theatre or a cabaret. We can enjoy very pleasant evenings in our own homes."

However, read the view of a "comer" in a medium-sized city:

"I once read that the late J. P. Morgan declared you can't launch a big vessel except in deep water. I agree with Jim that the biggest things are done in the biggest places. My ambition is to follow the example of nearly every unusually successful man in America; I mean that I want to qualify to win a place in the biggest peddle of them all, New York. Surely there's more glory and more satisfaction in winning out in New York than in winning out where there is not one-half as much competition. It's because the battle is fiercest there that I want to get into the thick of it. Outside of New York and Chicago how many financial or business men are there whose names are household words? There are some, of course, but mighty few."

What of the biggest men in the Metropolitan cities? How do they view life and achievement and fame?

Few men who have once entered the big ring in New York ever want to go back to any smaller ring. Those who succeed in climbing toward the top find the flight exhilarating. They have the feeling that they're right at the heart of things, that they are in the swim. They find that there is more glory in reaching the top in the nation's metropolis than there would be in becoming even the most prominent citizen in a town of ordinary size. The spotlight plays upon New York more than upon any other city in the country. The establishment of leadership in New York is, they figure, tantamount to attaining national leadership.

Occasionally, however, I run against conspicuously successful men in New York who question whether the game is worth the candle. After a while "fame" fails to impart any new thrill; fails to give any genuine satisfaction. After a man has seen his name and his picture paraded in the newspapers for a few years the glamor of the thing wears off.

* * *

Quite a few leaders who are nearing the end of their journey do have questionings as to whether they have got out of life quite as much as they might have been able to get out of it had their lines been cast in a different place. Extraordinary success usually costs a great deal. Very often it costs the sacrifice of rational home life. Not infrequently it costs the sacrifice of sound health. It is rare indeed if it does not entail the sacrifice of some of the finer ingredients that compose character.

Take this matter of sacrificing health. At the moment the two best-known bankers in America are both paying a heavy penalty for the abnormal strain they imposed upon their vitality. H. P. Davison, the foremost Morgan & Co. partner, suffered a nervous breakdown last year, and is still incapacitated from business. Frank A. Vanderlip has also been in very indifferent health for months. Yet neither is within sight of being an old man. And there are others.

* * *

Apparently, there are two sides to this whole matter. How do you feel about it?

Stocks Heavy; Money 7%; Sterling Lower

RALLIED IN N. Y. BEFORE NOON

Sugars Led the List for Weakness; Motors React; Rails Fairly Firm

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were heavy in New York at noon and irregular at the best, prices were above the lowest forward level, having rallied at mid-forenoon. Sugars were among those to improve, but motors had a reactionary tendency. Steels came back and rails remained fairly firm. Some improvement was noted in tires, tobaccos and equipments. The market was active in the first hour, when transactions totalled about 215,000 shares, but was quiet at noon, when 65,000 had been sold. Call money opened at 7 per cent. Demand sterling was half a cent lower at $3.88¾.

General Motors sold at record low for the second hour. Weakest issues included Atlantic Gulf, Baldwin, Pierce Arrow, Studebaker and United Fruit. Among strong ones were Northern Pacific and Reading.

OFF AT THE OPENING.

Prices rallied lower at the start, most quotations ranging 1 point below closing sales or soon afterwards. Rails and motors were the firmest groups in the early trading, the former apparently responding much to wage reductions. The curtailment of transportation expense had evidently been discounted. Sugars, were the weak feature. Within an hour eight such issues had sold at year or record lows, they being Cuba Cane common and preferred, Cuban American, Southern Pacific Rose, Beet Sugar, American Sugar and Punta Alegre. Early losses, ranging from fractions to more than two points, Crucible sagging the most, this was in the year-low list, as was Public Steel. Tobaccos went down. U. S. Rubber was the weakest tire, but they were quiet as a class. Mexican Petroleum and Houston were the only two active industrials to be revealed a sagging tendency in all quarters.

DIVIDEND REDUCTIONS

Dividend reductions and omissions have been the greatest bear factors of late. They are impressive evidence of business depression and unsettlement as to how long it will last. Directors of corporations with enough money in treasuries to make usual disbursements seem, as a rule, to believe that cash conservation is the proper policy at present. Wages are being reduced and capital is being deprived of its interest. Untoward business conditions are affecting crop values. From the south of Jeffersonian prosperity when slack service commanding excessive pay and cheap goods were sold at fictitious valuation the world must descend to the rough hustle where man must earn by hard labor all he gets. The world must learn anew that wealth is the product of industry and frugality and not of getting more than you give in service. Future, as ever, always in the past, those who loaf and gamble will lose and those who work and save will win.

Steel Industry Very Dull

It is stated that the steel industry has never been so dull since it became important in this country as now. Production is running at 20 per cent. of plant capacity and new business is being received at an even lower rate.

COPPERS DOWN IN BOSTON

Local Market Opens Irregular and Turns Weak; Mixed Movement on Curb

The price movement was sluggish at the opening of the Boston exchange, more than half of the stocks dealt in then changing hands at Tuesday's closing prices. The market was weak in a general sense and four issues sold at new lows for 1921 within an hour. They were Libby, Waltham Watch and American Sugar common and preferred. Fluctuations averaged small and trading was on small volume. Telephone rights continued active, however. Mexican investment advanced more than a point. It reports for 1920 a balance of equity of $11,334 after all expenses, charges and the preferred dividend. It had a gross income of $895,949 for the year. Point or more losses were shown during the morning by Calumet and Arizona, Waltham Watch, United Fruit and American Sugar issues. Coppers, packing shares and rails were heavy.

Among stocks to recede fractionally were Boston and Maine, New Haven, New York, New Haven & Hartford, New Cornelia, United Shoe, U. S. Smelting, Utah Copper, Punta Alegre, Libby, Swift, International, Waldorf and Edison. Small gains were made by Gillette, Hill and International Products.

CURB MOVEMENT MIXED.

The Curb had a mixed price movement at the opening and afterwards was irregular. Gains of a point or more to figure prominently in early trading were Boston and Montana, Daddy and Hecla Mining. The first named sold at a new record high price. Issues to show gains of once were Arizona Silver, Boston and Montana, Daddy, Hecla Divide, Jerome Verde and Ohio. Among those to recede on first sales were Alpha, Crystal, Eureka, Mutual, Palisade and Verde Minos.

At the end of an hour, Boston & Montana was up 2 points at 70 cents, Hendon 1 cent at 9 cents, Eureka 1 cent at 51 cents and Hecla Divide ½ cent at 9. Mutual was off 2 points at 77 cents, Daddy and Hecla Divide had lost their gains, and Crystal and Palisade had recovered losses.

The management does not intend to offer the $20,000,000 new stock at present but is said to have in reserve the following purposes: $5,000,000 for conversion into class A common stock; $5,000,000 for conversion into $12,000,000 for conversion into $15,000,000 of 8 per cent bonds about to be issued, and $5,000,000 to be offered formed stockholders that the floating debt has been reduced from $18,000,000 on Jan. 1 to about $14,000,000 at present. The $15,000,000 of 20-year convertible debentures, carrying $18,000,000 stock at $110 before 1931, will be issued to pay off bank loans.

MANY GIVE CARS FOR OUTING

Auto Owners Answer Appeal to Aid Crippled and Orphans

Plans for the outing on June 6, when the crippled and orphaned children of this vicinity will be entertained, are maturing rapidly, Chester I. Campbell, who has charge of it, states that the appeal for cars is being answered.

"The more cars we get the more children we shall be able to take care of," he said. "So this means that everyone who would like to take part in this charitable affair should not wait until the last moment to see whether or not their cars may be needed.

"We need all the machines we can get. And the earlier we know about it the better it will be. Then there will be no disappointments. We have to notify the officials of the various homes at least a week ahead of the date as to how many we can take for each place.

"It is disappointing enough for youngsters to know that they are not able to enjoy life as well as the more fortunate ones, but it is inestimable joy having to tell them that their hopes for a trip which they had anticipated with such great pleasure will not be realized.

"To the youngsters it means the one big event of the year, in fact, of the entire lives of some of them—to owners of motor cars—it means just one day in 365 when they do not use their cars themselves.

"We have received a number of donations from those who do not own cars, but who wish to be counted among those who are ready to help. The expense of feeding this large army of children and attendants is quite a item, and so the cash subscriptions are a great help.

Send your donations to Chester I. Campbell, 5 Park square, or telephone Beach 3740."

Mr. Fixit: I have a 1921 Ford which will not go only about twenty miles an hour and will not take a small load over an ordinary hill. An Example for Money Burners

One Son of a Rich Father Who Considers Riches a Burden

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Happy is the wealthy father who has a son he can trust with money. Happy is the son who, being left a rich inheritance, can put it to good use.

Bostius Sullivan, son of the late Roger C. Sullivan, self-made political leader and public utility magnate in Chicago, doesn't want wealth to spend on ostentation or luxurious vanities.

The happiest days were spent at "prep" school among fellows who judged each other not by incomes but by personal worth.

So Bostius is going to take the fortune his father left him and turn into scholarships in aid of poor boys who otherwise might not be able to prepare for college.

Much money is given away for massive and ornate school or college buildings, usually named in memory of the donors.

This is money usefully spent, for these buildings, with their equipment, help in the education of our youth.

But there are many great and fine educational plants with generous endowments which are closed to a host of deserving and gifted young men and young women because the latter lack the means of attendance upon them.

More stress has been placed upon endowing fine plants than upon aiding struggling ambition to get the benefits of them.

Roger Sullivan's son has shifted the emphasis where it is most needed.

His example, if widely followed for a time by custodians of surplus wealth, will bring into our colleges, universities and technical schools a new element vitally helpful to the institutions themselves and of future value to society.

Justice for Drafted Men

Method by Which the War Department May Avoid Serious Mistakes

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Among the men officially posted as "deserters from the military service of the United States" are a number who had voluntarily enlisted in our own or an allied service and were thus unable to "register, report or entrain" pursuant to the draft regulations.

Clearly such posting does a gross injustice which belated acknowledgment may not always correct. It exemplifies the danger in a carelessly uttered half-truth.

Of course, the War Department has no wish to do this injustice, but unless it modifies its present practice of taking the draft-board records at face value without further inquiry, it will necessarily continue to do injustice as long as its lists are published.

Martin C. Ansorge, Representative in Congress of the Twenty-first New York district, has prepared a method of procedure which would correct this mischief rather simply.

A resolution has been recommended that the names be published as "under investigation" and that no one be designated as a "deserter" until thirty days have expired, within which the man, or relatives and friends, may endeavor to explain the alleged violation to the War Department.

Representative Ansorge points out that:

By enlisting the aid of the public in this regard there will be no expense to the government and it will give each and every one of these men his "day in court." In special cases where the information thus derived is conflicting, the department can make a special investigation In cases where it develops that there are two or three persons with similar names, the final list when published can specifically exclude the particular man or men of a similar name who are not intended to be included in the list as a "deserter" or "deserters." The plan will in many cases also bring information to the Secretary of War of the whereabouts of the persons referred to.

By prompt adoption of this system Congress and the War Department can save from undeserved stigma many young men who did not wait for the draft to show their willingness to sacrifice for their country.

It is surprising that this simple expedient was not thought of sooner.

We Should Cultivate Better Feeling Here and Abroad

The Knox resolution will undoubtedly be passed. And, of course, the President will sign it.

Thus really ends the great war, so far as America is concerned.

Two years and more have been worse than wasted in a ridiculous pretense that we were still at war with the defunct German imperial government and the destroyed Austrian monarchy—two years spent in making technical war upon two corpses.

A strange mixture of comedy and tragedy, at which one can laugh while he sighs.

The reservations in regard to German property are largely technical safeguards. They will doubtless serve to protect some persons who made disgraceful and dishonorable and probably criminal misuse of the opportunities to loot the riches seized by the Custodian of Alien Property. But in the main justice will finally be done and the treaty which bound us not to seize the property of German aliens will be honorably observed in the long run.

Let us have peace and good-will abroad and at home.

A Factory Needs Its Brain

Just as Its Body Needs ITS Brain

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

There are many kinds of minds and of training. One mind, trained a certain way, can run a factory at a profit. Another trained differently, or untrained, can work in the factory, but doesn't know how to run it.

Russia made a mistake when she decided that the only thing in a factory was the man with the "brawny arm." She forgot the man with the protruding forehead and indigestion, who told the brawny-armed gentleman HOW to do it.

Russia now plans to lease the big Russian factories to former owners. Optimistic Bolshevism discovers that with gradual, slow changes, human beings must develop in the future as in the past. A body needs its brain, mushy and worthless as the brain may seem, taken out of the skull and scattered around. Without the brain, feet and hands get into trouble. The factory also needs its brain, the kind of thinking machine that makes ends meet.

It is one thing to dig, another thing to tell somebody else WHERE and HOW to dig in order to get coal, gold or diamonds. Trying to get along without the man that knows "HOW" never works. That, however, is no reason for allowing the man that knows "how" to take more than his share.

ARE YOU AFRAID OF CRITICISM?

It is useless to try to be fearless and just and at the same time avoid hurting the feelings of some persons; it can't be done.

If you do anything worth while you must expect to have some enemies.

If you would be more than a little person in a very small sphere you are bound to rouse censure and hear some very uncomplimentary remarks about yourself.

All men who do things—big things—make enemies.

A fearless writer usually has a good many enemies who seek at every opportunity to knock him and his work.

The man holding the highest political office is called incompetent by those who are far below him in mental calibre and capacity.

And so it goes, all along the line of man's advancement.

If you care more about persons speaking well of you than you do for the principles which actuate your life, or if you prefer not to be mentioned rather than to be criticised, it is just as well for you to go along in your spineless way, for your mental concept is wrong.

Letters to the Editor

Slackers?

Editor Boston American:

In answer to the pretentious claims of some of our ex-service men and also in justice to the men at present employed at the navy yard, allow me to review the situation since our country went into the war.

It is admitted that for every soldier or sailor at least three civilians had to stay at home and provide for them. We certainly would have made a sorry mess of it if every one of us had been made a soldier or sailor. In fact, I doubt if any of us would have got across as yet.

To take the casualties in the American army as a criterion, we will find that being a soldier in uniform was a good deal safer than being a soldier in the industrial army, the so-called "slackers." I am sure that a compilation of all statistics regarding deaths and injuries received in all the industries directly connected with the war, that those killed and maimed in the ship yards, railroads, arsenals, powder plants, etc., would far, very far, exceed those of the army. And all this happened in "the day's work." No medals were given.

Again, many of those whom our ex-service men are so ready to call "slackers" tried repeatedly to join either army or navy. Anyone who was employed in an essential occupation could not, no matter how hard he might try, get a release from his exemption board.

Again, all ex-service men have a claim on the government for any disease or injury which may develop due to their enlistment. Should they be permanently disabled they receive a pension. The laws of the Commonwealth give an employe (if he can collect it or if the insurance company does not talk him into a cash settlement) a compensation, or rather a pittance, for about eight years.

In conclusion, I ask you to give us the brains behind the soldiers that won the war, a fair deal.

ONE OF THE CIVILIAN ARMY.

Eighteenth Century Prophecy

In one of Roger Bacon's manuscripts is the following: "Machines for navigating are possible without rowers, so that great ships suited to river or ocean, guided by one man, may be borne with greater speed than if they were full of men. Likewise, cars may be made so that without a draught animal they may be moved cum impetus inestimabili, as we deem the scythed chariots to have been from which antiquity fought. And flying machines are possible, so that a man may sit in the middle turning some device by which artificial wings may beat the air in the manner of a flying bird."—In June Hearst's International.

At the Boro Boedoer

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

WATCHING the dawn upon its turrets break
(New beauties leaping to each ray of light),
Methought I heard Christ calling (as one might Call to an older brother): "Buddha, wake!
Come toil with me. From thy calm eyelids shake
The dreams of ages; and behold the sight
Of earth still sunk in ignorance and night.
I took thy labor—now thy portion take.

"Too vast the effort for one Avatar.
My brave disciples are not overwise.
Our kindred creeds they do not understand;
My cross they worship, yet thy temples mar.
Bear brother Buddha, from Nirvana rise,
And let us work together, hand in hand."

The Boro Boedoer is the largest and most beautiful ruin of a Buddhist temple in the world. It is situated in middle Java.

DIMENSION THE FOURTH MYSTERY TO MAN

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE unquenchable curiosity of readers about the "fourth dimension" and similar abstruse conceptions of modern mathematical science keeps an undiminishing pile of letters before me.

One inquirer has written thrice, taking pains to register his last letter, with a fixed resolve to get a grip on the fourth dimension, which enlists one of the developments of the Einstein theory present in the guise of time.

Professor Simon Newcomb hit upon a happy phrase which correctly designates this whole region of thought as it must always appear to the non-mathematical observer. He called it "the fairyland of geometry." The only way to get into it is by learning to walk on mathematical stilts.

Like Magicians.

To people outside who see the mathematicians moving about inside on their stilts it looks as if they were magicians walking on nothing. Yet if the curious shout over the fence at them, "How the deuce do you do it?" they either reply in an untranslatable jargon or they tell fairy tales to amuse the inquirers.

The simple source of the difficulty of understanding the fourth dimension lies in the fact that there is no such thing as a fourth dimension recognizable by human senses.

Our senses are limited by the physical world in which we live. We have a "realizing sense" of up-and-down, of to-and-fro and of side-to-side. They represent the three dimensions or measurable extensions in the midst of which we are placed. We usually call them length, breadth and thickness. Geometrically we represent them by a line, a plane (or flat space) and a cube. Algebraically they correspond to the exponents 1, 2 and 3.

Only Three.

The exponent 1 represents the first power of quantity and may stand for length; the exponent 2 represents the second power or square, i. e., the quantity multiplied by itself, and may stand for breadth multiplied by length; the exponent 3 represents the third power or cube and may stand for thickness multiplied by breadth multiplied by length. There end the three dimensions of which we are directly aware.

A fourth dimension, if it continued the series, would algebraically be represented by the fourth power, obtained by multiplying the product of length, breadth and thickness by something else that the senses know not, though the imagination, led by mathematical formulas, may dimly body it forth.

PUNCTUALITY IS INDEED A ROYAL GRACE

By Dr. Charles Fleischer.

Copyright, 1921, by Premier Syndicate, Inc.

WE are hungry for informing news from Russia—and from that other moving seat of war, Germany.

But see what the evening paper brings from Sandringham, England—the startling information, that all the clocks at this country home of King George are kept thirty minutes fast. The reason for this is unknown. It is surmised that it had something to do with daylight saving when King Edward was alive.

A poor guess, we would call that surmise! What is yours?

Here is the writer's: King George keeps his clocks thirty minutes fast for the same reason that many of us set our watches ahead: namely, that he wants to make sure of being on time.

They used to say that punctuality is the courtesy of kings. Evidently George, even in these democratic days, regards punctuality as a fitting regal quality.

Another and a cleverer Britisher whose name used to be, but no longer is, taboo—Oscar Wilde, playing with the popular proverb about procrastination, once said that punctuality is the thief of time.

Never Behind

The writer is willing to admit that he used to be right royal on this score himself. He used to pride himself upon punctuality—never much ahead, but on principle never behind time. Then he found that he wasted so many precious hours because of the other fellow's tardiness that he decided to yield so much to royalty as was involved in punctuality and to join the ranks of democratic delinquents.

Imagine his delight when he discovered that his now habitual tardiness was justified in Wilde's cynical epigram, punctuality is the thief of time!

It suggests the satirical diagnosis of the debtor, who worries only once, and that is when he is after the loan. Thereafter he allows his creditor to do the worrying.

Don't you know the type? Sometimes he comes to you as though you were his private Salvation Army, rescuing his bankrupt soul from imminent damnation. Another time he appears with all the patronizing airs of a baronial benefactor, giving you the proud privilege of making him a loan.

But when it comes to paying—why then, in either case, it is your privilege to worry about the payment.

So with punctuality. Why waste your own time to keep an appointment? Let the other fellow waste his! He must have time to burn —veritable millionaire of minutes.

Time Is Money

Time is money is the way our American bible would put it. So it is natural that tardiness in the discharge of both obligations should here be associated.

Seriously, punctuality is indeed a royal grace.

The writer does not mean to be flippant about it. For he really appreciates it, as we all do—in the other fellow.

Duly, even we scions of democracy shall emulate this royal virtue and all other aristocratic graces.

What knows but we may actually become punctual (while time still counts), careful of the other fellow's hour as if it were our own, and honest (while money still has value)—even as we would that he should be unto us!
